

Did you Know

By Pat J. Kirwin

THAT a check-up of four local merchants showed that 22,819 Christmas greeting cards were sold the first four days of this past week.

That George H. Armstrong of Salt Creek twp. has been superintendent of the Adelphi M. E. church Sunday school for nearly 25 years, more than half of his life.

That before Circleville ever had an opera house such bright stars as Madeline Mojaska, Rhea Jananscheck, Kate Claxton, Mrs. Fisk, Sol Smith Russell and Tom Keene showed here in "Peck's Hall" and the old "Coliseum"—now Wolfe's Barn on E. Franklin-st.

THAT several weeks ago, John Rhoads, Logan-st., drove seven miles in the country during dinner hour, shot and killed a rabbit and pheasant and returned within 40 minutes.

That 51 years ago in October, Harry "Tu" Wilson, S. Court-st. drove a team of horses which led an old packet boat up the Ohio Canal to Buckeye Lake where a number of local men enjoyed a two weeks' outing. Mr. Wilson was then 14 years of age and those who were in the party included: Ferd Wilson, Charles Krimmer, John and Harley Kirwin, Dick Moss, Ed. Bodkin, Mark Briner, West Vilek, Sam Thompson, Bill Lindebaugh, Spot Bodkin, Ed. Long and Mr. Wilson. The party left the E. Main-st. dock and two days were required to make the trip.

That at one time the present site of the Walnut-st. school was the highest point in Pickaway-co. There was a high hill there some years ago and when it was graded down Indian relics were found.

That Big Walnut creek is still used as the site for the old fashioned emersion baptisms by several Columbus churches.

That a large number of the trees in the yard of Mrs. E. E. Smith, S. Court-st. were shipped to this city from Cleveland by canal.

THAT a number of years ago there was an old flour mill operated by a water wheel on Scippo creek on the John Anderson farm in Pickaway-twp. The old gear wheel is still preserved.

That Andrew Mettler of Laurelville was the arresting officer of Perry Bowsher, well known here, who was hanged at Chillicothe on a murder charge a number of years ago. Bowsher is alleged to have robbed and killed a Mr. and Mrs. McKay, aged 90 and 94 respectively, who were toll-gate keepers out of Chillicothe. A large number of Circleville residents journeyed to Chillicothe to witness the hanging.

That some years ago a man was lynched and hanged at Commercial Point by a number of frenzied people after he had stolen a number of horses from farmers in and around that village.

That 50 years ago there were only three houses between the Renick farm homestead, now the residence of Mrs. John Arledge, Clinton-st. and Circleville high school, S. Court-st.

That there have been four court houses in Circleville. The first was the Jacob Zeager building, corner High and N. Court-sts. which was rented for $40 per year. The next court house was the octagonal-shaped building at the corner of Main and Court-sts. which was torn down in 1840; the third and known to many persons as the old court house was erected on the site of the present structure in 1847 and it was succeeded by the present building.

That the "Cully" Green, former ls. of here and now of Dayton, and one of his railroad friends, rode the fastest train that ever passed through Circleville. It was a freight train which came uncoupled and parted on the Storrsville grade. The rear end ran backward through Circleville across the river bridge and down near the dam before it was stopped.

BASKETBALL PLAYERS FROM ASHVILLE HURT; REPORT MORE WRECKS

MANY TO SEEK ELECTIVE JOBS HERE IN SPRING

Sheriff Radcliff is Sure to Run for Reelection on Demo Ticket

MANY NAMES HEARD

Ralph May, Pickaway-twp to Seek Commissionership

Many, many rumors of probable political candidates have been wafting their ways about the country during the past week or so and with them have come several confirmations of candidacies.

The first definite announcement comes from Sheriff Charles H. Radcliff who will seek the Democratic nomination for the second time Radcliff's first term has been a successful one.

The only person whose name has been circulated as possible opposition to Radcliff is John Keller, of Scioto-twp, a Democrat. Mr. Keller has not confirmed the report that he will seek the nomination, however. As yet no person has been announced on the Republican ticket.

MAY IN FIELD

Another definite announcement came Friday evening when Ralph E. May well known Pickaway-twp farmer, made it known that he will seek the Democratic nomination for county commissioners next May. Mr. May's name has been mentioned several times but that he would positively be a candidate was not known until late Friday.

Other candidates for the two commissioners' jobs which will be open are expected to be Marvin Dreisbach and E. W. Beatty, Republicans, candidates to succeed themselves, George Curry, Perry-twp Democrat, Burr H. Rader, Pickaway-twp, former Democratic commissioner, Jesse Pitt, Muhlenberg-twp Democrat, Clay Hilber, Willard-twp Democrat, and William Justice, Jackson-twp Democrat.

Several other names have been circulated and it is expected before many more weeks the field for the position as county commissioners will be crowded with aspirants.

The name of Harry Griner has been mentioned more than once to oppose J. Howard Sweetman, for the county engineer's post. Both men are Democrats. Griner is a former county engineer having preceded Sweetman in the office.

RAIL GUARDS MUTINY, RIOT

Several Officers Are Slain in Town of Mangou; Woman Is Badly Hurt.

HARBIN, Manchuria. (By Airplane Courier to Mukden), Dec. 12.—More than 100 railway guards mutinied at the town of Mangou last Wednesday, killing several officers and four Chinese civilians and wounding many others. Chinese military authorities here were advised today.

Two armored trains carrying 300 Chinese Eastern Railway special troops immediately were dispatched to the scene.

Among the wounded was Madame Troitzne, Russian wife of the manager of a European grain firm. Seriously shot, she was brought here, where doctors found it necessary to amputate her leg.

Officers of the first armored train to reach Mangou took possession of the town which they found had been looted by the mutineers and began negotiations with the local Chamber of Commerce to arrange payment for protection.

Business men reported that the railwaymen had long been unpaid and that they simply took the collection of their salaries in arrears by turning bandits.

HIT LIGHTLESS CAR

Hammels In Accident; Bargar Hits Traction

Several accidents, none of which proved serious, occurred on county highways Friday evening. Shippery highways were the cause of the accidents.

Tina May Kuhlwein, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Kuhlwein, of Ashville, suffered a cut left cheek and eyebrow at 7 p. m. Friday, when the Chrysler sedan driven by Judith Schlegel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Schlegel, of Ashville, crashed against the rear end of a car traveling north on the Scioto Trail without lights. The wreck happened near Bell's Siding.

Miss Kuhlwein and Miss Schlegel had gone to the Pickaway-twp school to play basketball Friday evening and when they arrived there Miss Schlegel learned that her father had forgotten her basketball shoes. She was returning to her home, accompanied by Miss Kuhlwein when the accident occurred.

HAD NO LIGHTS

The girls were going north on the pike when Miss Schlegel observed an automobile in front of her. Before the car could be stopped it crashed against the rear end of the other car, occupants of which were going from West Virginia to Detroit.

Miss Kuhlwein was taken to Berger hospital where her injuries were treated by Dr. Lloyd Jones. Miss Schlegel was not injured other than a bruised knee.

HAMMELS IN WRECK

Mr. and Mrs. George E. Hammel, of 650 N. Court-st., escaped injury at 10 p. m. Friday, when the gray sedan in which they were riding south on the Columbus-pk. several miles north of S. Bloomfield, skidded on the wet pavement and ran into the ditch.

Mr. Hammel was returning home from a meeting of insurance agents held at the Neil House in Columbus Friday.

The auto was not badly damaged and was towed to the Circleville Motors garage for minor repairs.

EVADERS HITTING CHILD

Ralph Bargar, well-known caterer at the Pickaway Country Club, suffered slight cuts and bruises when he turned his auto into the path of a traction car in Columbus, Thursday, in order to evade striking a school child. Mr. Bargar was driving north on High-st. when a number of school children started to run across the street in front of his car.

He turned sharply to the left striking the traction car but not hitting any of the children. Bargar's Whippet car was badly damaged.

Cecil LaFond, 12, of Detroit, Mich., who was injured in an auto accident south of this city last week-end, was discharged from Berger hospital Saturday. The boy was hurt when his father's car turned over.

Residents of this city were trying to find an accident Friday evening when a car went through the city with its siren screaming. Some thought it was an ambulance and others thought it was a police car. The latest report is that the car was an ambulance going from Chillicothe to Columbus.

"Virgil Dutz, Circleville R. F. D. 1, escaped injury at 9 a. m. Saturday when the Pontiac coupe he was driving toward Lancaster on the Lancaster-pk. near the Pickaway-co line was crowded off the road into the ditch by a passing auto.

The front end of the car including radiator, hood and lower body was damaged and brought to the Circleville Motors garage for repairs.

Luther Maddy, Chillicothe, R. F. D. 7 escaped with minor cuts and bruises at 6:30 a. m. Saturday when the Ford truck he was driving north on the Chillicothe-pk. one-half mile north of Nash, crashed into a strap-wagon driven by Jasper H. Hall 143 Walnut-st. The strap-wagon was traveling the wrong way and was instantly killed.

Business men reported that the railwaymen had long been unpaid and that they simply took the collection of their salaries in arrears by turning bandits.

FINS WILL REFER PROHIBITION ISSUE

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Dec. 12.—With only two days to go before the Finnish parliament meets, a government bill proposing a referendum on the prohibition issue.

LEAVENWORTH PRISON TENSE; MEN IN IRONS

Many Questions Are Yet Unexplained After Friday's Riot, Three Die

WARDEN IMPROVED

One Convict Is Missing, Three Dead, After Fight

LEAVENWORTH, Kas., Dec. 12.—An ominous tension blanketed the "Big House" today. It was the taut calm that followed the federal penitentiary's most violent insurrection marked by the death of three fleeing convicts, the recapture of three others, the abduction and wounding of the warden and the disappearance of a seventh prisoner.

Beneath the still surface of military order official activity seethed as the authorities began gathering up the loose ends of the bloody outbreak. Several mysterious aspects of the prison break remained to be solved, not the least of which were:

- (1) Where and how did the six freedom-seeking convicts obtain their weapons?
- (2) Who shot and killed three of the escaping prisoners in a hotly besieged farm house, eight miles from the prison?
- (3) Who shot and wounded Warden Thomas B. White?
- (4) Where is Earl Thayer, the convict who was discovered missing in a checkup after the frustrated break?

PLACED IN IRONS

The three fleeing convicts, surrounded and captured in a woods, were placed in heavy irons after their return to the prison. The men, Charles Berta, Stanley Brown and Tom Underwood, stubbornly refused in the face of a steady grilling, to reveal the manner in which pistols, shotguns and ammunition were smuggled in to them. Nor would they disclose other details of the carefully contrived delivery plot which brought death to their three companions. Will Green, Grover C. Durrill and George Curtis.

Evidence emerging from the investigation thus far points to Green, 32, an Oklahoma City mail robber serving 25 years, as the leader and the most desperate of the desperadoes who created a reign of terror throughout the countryside as they fled from the prison trading bullets with pursuing posses.

SHOT HIS PAIS

It was Green who was believed to have shot Warden White when the official made an heroic attempt to wrest a shotgun from the convict's hands. It was Green who dealt out death to his fugitive comrades, Durrill and Curtis, and then destroyed his own life in the besieged farm house, according to the theory of Coroner Ted L. Sexton.

After a preliminary examination of the convict trio's bodies the coroner said all three had been killed by 38 calibre pistol bullets. Durrill and Curtis appeared to have been shot at close range. The wounds that spelled death.

Battle of Bridge Giants Attracts World Attention

War, Death, Politics, Pestilence and Divorce Chased Off Front Pages by Duel to Test Relative Merits of Lenz and Culbertson Systems.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—The celebrated bridge over the Tiber, where the Roman hero, Horatius, kept a whole army at bay in the brave days of old, never attracted as much attention as the bridge battle now being fought in New York between the proponents of the Lenz and Culbertson systems of bidding.

Never in the history of this vale of tears has a card game aroused such interest as that which will decide whether Ely Culbertson or Sidney Lenz is the most expert of the experts. Not only is it being "covered" by correspondents of all the leading newspapers in America, but it is also front-page material for most of the European dailies, representatives of which record each hand, bid and play to appear in next morning's London, Paris and Berlin papers.

The match, consisting of 150 rubbers and expected to last about six weeks, was made to test the

HUMAN FLY THIEF HELD IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—New York's "Human Fly" burglar who with confederates is accused of $1,500,000 gum thefts in fashionable homes was captured today, police believed, when Robert Russell, colored, was arrested after he climbed up the facade of a Park Avenue building and apparently tried to enter the home of Mrs. John Woodruff Simpson, society matron.

Detectives later rounded up eight other men, all except one colored, who were suspected of having aided in the robberies that recently terrorized wealthy residents.

MRS. SMITH IS AUTO VICTIM

Resident of This City for Many Years Killed in Muskegon, Mich.

Mrs. Florence Hoffman Smith, aged 51, a resident of this city for many years, was struck by an automobile and instantly killed at her home in Muskegon, Mich., Friday night, according to a telegram received here Saturday by Col. C. E. Groce.

Mrs. Smith was a teacher in the public schools here and resided in the home on E. Mount-st. now occupied by Judge and Mrs. Joseph W. Adkins.

Details of the accident were not obtained.

Mrs. Smith is survived by her husband, Frank Smith, a son, Dudley, and a brother, Douglas Hoffman of Chicago, Ill.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

SHIP IS LOST, THIRTY DROWN

German Cargo Steamer Goes Aground off Norway Coast; Boats Are Missing.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—Thirty members of the crew of the German cargo steamer Venus were believed drowned today when the vessel went aground and sank north of Bergen, Norway, according to dispatches from Oslo.

Two members of the crew, with the bodies of four of their comrades, were washed ashore on a raft.

The two survivors said the ship sank quickly after it crashed on the rocks.

Two life boats were launched, but were missing several hours after the disaster.

Rescue boats were dispatched from Bergen.

NOTED EDUCATOR KNOWN HERE, DIES

Mrs. Almada Bennett, of Atlanta, has received word of the death of her son, Professor Clarence L. E. Moore, which occurred at his home in Boston, Mass., Dec. 4.

He is survived by his widow and one daughter, Hazel. Prof. Moore had been an instructor at Boston Institute of Technology for 27 years and was one of the noted educators of the country. He was a graduate of Ohio State University, and Cornell and studied in Italy. Prof. Moore began his teaching career in a little brick school house near Williamsport, and always maintained an interest in his old friends having visited here a year ago.

Every Angle That Might Produce a Clue Is Being Investigated

OFFICERS ARE BUSY

Funeral for John Kidney to Be Sunday at 2

A heated investigation in which every clue, whether it be as large as the veritable needle in the haystack, was being continued by Sheriff Charles Radcliff and his deputies Saturday in the atrocious murder of John Kidney, 75, well known Monroe-twp. farmer. Nothing definite has developed since authorities began their investigation but at the rate they are working anything might be expected at any time.

Whether or not the officers have any definite clue is not known. Nothing in the way of guess work is being announced by Sheriff Radcliff. Nothing will be known of the investigation until something definite presents itself.

ALL AT WORK

Beginning Thursday evening after the death of Mr. Kidney, whose sister, Sarah, an invalid, was badly beaten by three, and possibly four men identified by her as negroes and the home robbed of $448, county authorities have been working diligently and if there is any clue which might lead to the arrest of the guilty culprits it will be run down. The sheriff and his deputies have had little sleep since the terrible crime.

Miss Sarah Kidney, 70, who was struck on the head by a blackjack, choked and tied and thrown to the floor, is reported as resting comfortably at her home. Her condition has not been considered serious.

FUNERAL SUNDAY

Funeral services for Mr. Kidney, a lifelong resident of the Monroe-twp. community, will be held at the home at 2 p. m. Rites there will be short with further services at Hebron church nearby. Interment will be in Hebron cemetery, by the Bowman Co. of Mt. Sterling.

The short services at the home were requested by the deceased's sister.

SHOT HIS PALS

It was Green who was believed to have shot Warden White when the official who was discovered missing in a checkup after the frustrated break? It was Green who dealt out death to his fugitive comrades, Durrill and Curtis, and then destroyed his own life in the besieged farm house, according to the theory of Coroner Ted L. Sexton.

After a preliminary examination of the convict trio's bodies, the coroner said all three had been killed by .38 calibre pistol bullets. Durrill and Curtis appeared to have been shot at close range. The wounds were in the ears. But the wounds that spelled death to them were in the chest.

WATCHMAN IS KILLED

James F. Bennett, 65, of Marion, Is Slain As He Ended His Night's Work.

MARION, O., Dec. 12.—Attacked by assailants who apparently trailed him under the cover of the dark of night, James F. Bennett, 65, railroad watchman, was fatally shot outside his home here early today.

Bennett's lifeless body with a 22 caliber bullet in the chest was discovered a half block from his home by his brother who had become alarmed at his failure to arrive home at the usual hour.

Police were baffled by the mysterious shooting. A robbery motive was dispensed with when the man's watch and clothing were found intact.

Battle of Bridge Giants Attracts World Attention

War, Death, Politics, Pestilence and Divorce Chased Off Front Pages by Duel to Test Relative Merits of Lenz and Culbertson Systems.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—The celebrated bridge over the Tiber, where the Roman hero, Horatius, kept a whole army at bay in the brave days of old, never attracted as much attention as the bridge battle now being fought in New York between the proponents of the Lenz and Culbertson systems of bidding.

Never in the history of this vale of tears has a card game aroused such interest as that which will decide whether Ely Culbertson or Sidney Lenz is the most expert of the experts. Not only is it being "covered" by correspondents of all the leading newspapers in America, but it is also front-page material for most of the European dailies, representatives of which record each hand, bid and play to appear in next morning's London, Paris and Berlin papers.

The match, consisting of 150 rubbers and expected to last about six weeks, was made to test the relative merits of the approach-forcing bidding system, championed by Mr. Culbertson and his wife, and the 1-2-3 system, favored by Mr. Lenz and his partner, Oswald Jacoby.

Both experts are supremely confident that his is the perfect modus operandi for plugging up the points, but Mr. Culbertson is apparently the more confident, for he has wagered $5,000 to Mr. Lenz $1,000 that his system comes out on top. Regardless of who is the victor in the game, the winnings are pledged to charity.

The scene at the opening rubber of the great bridge battle was a strange one as the opposing experts and their partners sat down to begin the card duel which attracted the eyes of a world that in the past few years has come to regard bridge as a Moslem does his sunset prayers.

At one corner of the card table was a microphone, over which the bidding and resulting play was broadcast into millions of homes where bridge parties followed the play of the experts. It is hardly necessary to say that the four principals in the gigantic game were seething with excitement—well, not all four; for Mrs. Culbertson was as cool as if she had just stepped from under a cold shower.

Watches, on that first night, were limited to one, Lieutenant Gruenther, U. S. A., who acted as referee, but when the players had settled down in earnest the army of "war correspondents" from international newspapers and press syndicates was permitted to witness the progress of the Homeric battle on condition that strict silence would be maintained, a severe ordeal for a newspaperman.

Though the Lenz team was a couple of thousand points ahead after the second night's play, the Culbertsons were far from downhearted, so far, in fact, that Mr. Culbertson signified his willingness to back his wife and himself, in a word, their system, to the extent of $25,000 at odds of two to one.

Whatever the outcome may be, the match, which must be finished by January 15, according to the agreement, will undoubtedly be ranked as the greatest card game ever staged and when the ultimate winners are announced the bridge addicts of the country—nay, the world—will at once begin to get busy, remodeling their game to conform with the system that comes out on top.

What's This We Hear, Mr. Officer

Careful there, Tommy! Tom McManamy, veteran city policeman, making his usual rounds every night put in a call from the Wallace Bakery at 3:30 a. m., Saturday to notify the desk at police headquarters that all was well.

Well, it wasn't. Tom called his number and instead of being connected with the police station was given the fire department. As usual, Officer McManamy said "Wallace's Bakery" and replaced the receiver.

The fire department thinking that Wallace's Bakery was on fire rang the alarm, hauled out the truck and went a speeding to the bakery shop.

But they found nothing.

UNION LEADER TO SERVE LIFE TERM

MT. STERLING, Ky., Dec. 12.—Blaming "coal operators' money" for his conviction as a murderer in the Kentucky mine shooting trial, and his sentence to life imprisonment, William B. Jones, union mine officer, declared today that he will immediately start a battle for a new hearing.

He was indignant at the outcome of his long trial in Montgomery county court in which he was found guilty of conspiracy in the murder of Deputy Sheriff "Big Jim" Daniels, and declared much of the testimony about the mine fight at Evans, Ky., on May 5, in which three others were killed, was false.

HUMAN FLY THIEF HELD IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—New York's "Human Fly" burglar who with confederates is accused of $1,500,000 gem thefts in fashionable homes was captured today, police believed, when Robert Russell, colored, was arrested after he climbed up the facade of a Park Avenue building and apparently tried to enter the home of Mrs. John Woodruff Simpson, society matron.

Detectives later rounded up eight other men, all except one colored, who were suspected of having aided in the robberies that recently terrorized wealthy residents.

MRS. SMITH'S AUTO VICTIM

Resident of This City for Many Years Killed in Muskegon, Mich.

Mrs. Florence Hoffman Smith, aged 51, a resident of this city for many years, was struck by an automobile and instantly killed at her home in Muskegon, Mich., Friday night, according to a telegram received here Saturday by Col. C. E. Groce.

Mrs. Smith was a teacher in the public schools here and resided in the home on E. Mount-st now occupied by Judge and Mrs. Joseph W. Adkins.

Details of the accident were not obtained.

Mrs. Smith is survived by her husband, Frank Smith, a son, Dudley, and a brother, Douglas Hoffman of Chicago, Ill.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

SHIP IS LOST, THIRTY DROWN

German Cargo Steamer Goes Aground off Norway Coast; Boats Are Missing.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—Thirty members of the crew of the German cargo steamer Venus were believed drowned today when the vessel went aground and sank north of Bergen, Norway, according to dispatches from Oslo.

Two members of the crew, with the bodies of four of their comrades, were washed ashore on a raft.

The two survivors said the ship sank quickly after it crashed on the rocks.

Two life boats were launched, but were missing several hours after the disaster.

Rescue boats were dispatched from Bergen.

NOTED EDUCATOR KNOWN HERE, DIES

Mrs. Almada Bennett, of Atlanta, has received word of the death of her cousin, Professor Clarence L. E. Moore, which occurred at his home in Boston, Mass., Dec. 4.

He is survived by his widow and one daughter, Hazel.

Prof. Moore had been an instructor at Boston Institute of Technology for 27 years and was one of the noted educators of the country. He was a graduate of Ohio State University, and Cornell and studied in Italy. Prof. Moore began his teaching career in a little brick school house near Williamsport, and always maintained an interest in his old friends having visited here a year ago.

PRESENT PICTURE TO LOCAL CHURCH

The services at the Presbyterian church promise to be of unusual interest.

The copy of Da Vinci's famous painting of "The Last Supper" presented by Miss Elizabeth J. Ruggles of Pasadena, Calif., will be shown.

The lamp over the picture is presented by the Young Women's Bible class of the church and the installation by the Sunday school. A male quartet composed of Glen Geib, Melvin Yates, Adrian Yates, and Herbert Eagleson will sing "Jerusalem," by Parker.

In the evening in place of the sermon the minister will use the lecture and illustrated slides, 58 in number, on "The Pearl of the Orient Seas," a series of beautiful views of the Philippines. Slides on "Korea" will be shown later.

A CLASS WINS

The eighth grade A class defeated the B section in a preliminary game to the varsity encounter at Circleville high school gymnasium by the score of 8 to 2 Friday evening.

By virtue of its victory, A class will meet the C section in a preliminary encounter at the next home game.

Every Angle That Might Produce a Clue Is Being Investigated

OFFICERS ARE BUSY

Funeral for John Kidney to Be Sunday at 2

A heated investigation in which every clue, whether it be as large as the veritable needle in the haystack, was being continued by Sheriff Charles Radcliff and his deputies Saturday in the atrocious murder of John Kidney, 75, well known Monroe-twp. farmer. Nothing definite has developed since authorities began their investigation but at the rate they are working anything might be expected at any time.

Whether or not the officers have any definite clue is not known. Nothing in the way of guess work is being announced by Sheriff Radcliff. Nothing will be known of the investigation until something definite presents itself.

ALL AT WORK

Beginning Thursday evening after the death of Mr. Kidney, whose sister, Sarah, an invalid, was badly beaten by three, and possibly four men identified by her as negroes and the home robbed of $446, county authorities have been working diligently and if there is any clue which might lead to the arrest of the guilty culprits it will be run down. The sheriff and his deputies have had little sleep since the terrible crime.

Miss Sarah Kidney, 70, who was struck on the head by a blackjack, choked and tied and thrown to the floor, is reported as resting comfortably at her home. Her condition has not been considered serious.

FUNERAL SUNDAY

Funeral services for Mr. Kidney, a lifelong resident of the Monroe-twp. community, will be held at the home at 2 p. m. Rites there will be short with further services at Hebron church nearby. Interment will be in Hebron cemetery, by the Bowman Co. of Mt. Sterling. The short services at the home were requested by the deceased's sister.

RIVER RISES 6 FEET HERE

More Than Inch Rainfall Recorded Here In Few Days; Temperature Up.

With slightly more than an inch of rainfall here in the past few days and a heavy rain north of Pickaway-co, the Scioto River has risen over six feet in the past 12 hours, according to Dr. H. R. Clarke.

Although Christmas is only 14 days away, spring-like temperatures continue to hover over central Ohio.

Friday's mild temperature broke a 32-year-old heat record for December in Ohio when mercury bobbed around 66 1-2 degrees. Other sections of the state also reported unseasonable temperatures.

NAMED PREMIER

TOKYO, Dec. 12.—Formal announcement was expected tonight of the appointment of Tatsuoki Inukai, president of the Seiyukai (conservative) party as Japan's new premier.

Inukai is endeavoring to construct a Seiyukai cabinet in succession to the Minseito ministry of Reijiro Wakatsuki, which resigned because of pressure within the cabinet for the formation of a coalition government.

Both Hi School Court Teams Gain Victories

Boys Win 21-16, Girls 31 To 15

Circleville's high school basketball team opened their season with victories Friday evening, the boys winning, 21-16, and the girls 31-15, with Rockbridge's two teams in the losing end of both games.

Both local teams were given prizes, the boys coming in the first few minutes of play and the girls coming just before the end of the first half.

In the boys contest Rockbridge scored two field goals in rapid succession after the topoff before the Red and Black was able to hit the hoop. Rockbridge increased its lead with a free throw and at the end of the period had a 5-2 margin.

LOCALS IN SPURT

But that was as far as the Rockbridge boys went in their efforts to gain a victory. The Tigers opened their offense in the second period and registered three field goals while the zone defense worked better in this period than at any time during the game and he half ended 8-5 in Circleville's favor, Rockbridge being held without a point.

A goal by the center, Welch, was Rockbridge's quota in the third period, while the Tiger offense was looking in real fashion with Merle Davis and Carl Purcell hitting the hoop regularly on good passes from the other three men on the team. The third session ended 17-10.

Rockbridge scored nine points or four in the final period but the local margin was too much. Welch and Johnson, Rockbridge forward and center, did the entire scoring for their team with Walker, flashy forward going without a point.

The Red and Black zone defense worked very well with the exception of the center spot, nearly all of Rockbridge's points coming from just in front of the basket.

TIGERETTES STRONG

The Tiger girls started out like a hot affire to snatch an early 8-7 lead over their opponents but before the half was ended the score stood Circleville 11, Rockbridge 10.

But the Rockbridge girls had 'done their darndest.' The score at the end of the third period was 27-10 for the locals.

With some smoothing out the girls' team is expected to be very strong. Fitzpatrick missed many shots in this game that she probably won't miss again this season and despite this fact she tallied four field goals six free throws and one one point shot. Jane Hitler seem to have found her eye and scored six times from the field, five of her goals coming in the second half. Bennett looked good at the other forward and although she scored only once her floor game and passing is good.

The defense, Henderson, Reigel, and Betts, looked strong.

Johnny Heiskell refereed both games.

Love Me, Love My Horse!

"And everywhere that Mary went—" might be paraphrased to "the horse was sure to go" in the case of Antoinette Sharp, of Dallas, Texas, who is a freshman at Wellesley College, Mass. When Miss Sharp came up to study at the exclusive school she could not bear to be parted from "Shorty," her favorite cow pony, so she brought the lucky equine along. She is shown with the collegiate steed, all dressed up in real cowgirl style, ten gallon hat and all, as she gave him a little exercise in the first snow storm of the season.

BATBATTALINO K. O.'S SINGER

Rugged Featherweight Champion Assumes Role of Killer In Bout Friday.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—Christopher (Bat) Battalino, rugged featherweight champion, was the sensation of the fight world today as a result of his quick knockout over Al Singer, former lightweight champion, in the second round of their scheduled 10-round bout at Madison Square Garden last night.

The swarthy Italian, astounding a capacity crowd of 20,000 fans in his new role as a killer, scored a technical knockout over the New York idol in 1:31 of the second round after flooring him five times.

"Bat" qualified for a lightweight championship bout at the Garden next month with Tony Canzoneri, two divisions above him in the fight scale. He has high hopes of becoming a triple titleholder by beating Canzoneri and then winning the junior lightweight crown from Kid Chocolate.

Battalino shoved Singer out of the boxing ringlight in his time. Undismayed by three stiff rights to the jaw in the first minute, he floored Singer with his first real punch, a vicious left hook to the stomach. Singer, up without taking a count, was floored again by a wild left to the temple. Bat raised his opponent around the ring and sent him crashing to the canvas a third time with a left hook.

NEWS FROM THE OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY OF STATE

COLUMBUS, O. — Volume 114, Laws of Ohio, are being shipped by Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown to all county auditors of the state for local distribution. The Ohio roster of township and municipal officers is being compiled, but will not be ready for distribution for several months.

The kiddies of the Capital City as well as those who may be visiting here, are having a great time during the holiday season as guests of Santa Claus, who gives them free tickets for rides on his merry-go-round, which has been erected under canvas in the State House yard. The down town electrical decorations are also attracting people from scores of cities, towns, villages and the rural community.

The 4,450 inmates in the Ohio Penitentiary this year will enjoy a Christmas dinner of roast loin of pork with oyster dressing, candied sweet potatoes, gravy, bread, butter, coffee and possibly pie or cake. The pork being raised by the state, reduces the cost of the dinner per man to 17 cents. Truly, buying a Christmas dinner on the outside for 17 cents. The prisoners will enjoy the holidays with special movie shows and opening their Christmas boxes from friends and relatives.

Final figures on the general election of November 3, 1931, which are on file with Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown, reveal that 1,737,576 votes were cast as compared with 2,018,281 votes cast on November 4, 1930. The $7,500,000 bond issue carried in only two counties. If their totals be added it is seen that even in those counties it did not receive favorable consideration from a majority of the people attending the polls. Over the whole state, 23 per cent of the voters at the polls voted for the issue, 44 per cent against the issue, while 28 per cent refused to vote upon it. Competent observers say that bond issues should only be passed, when, and if, they receive a majority of all votes cast.

The mild weather of the past few weeks has enabled employees of the State Highway department to push to a rapid completion many projects under construction. Work on bridges in various counties of the state will continue throughout the winter, giving employment to hundreds of men. Director of Highways C. W. Merrell in the past few days awarded several hundred thousand dollars worth of contracts on new bridges and approaches.

During the first ten months of this year 1,569 were killed in automobile accidents. During the same period last year 1,748 were killed. According to records of the State Health Department there has been a reduction in deaths from automobile accidents at grade crossings in connection with railroad trains, there being 233 in 1930 and only 131 this year. This reduction has been brought about since June. The average number of monthly deaths from this cause is 23. In July only three were reported. In August ten and four in September. Last year 72 automobiles ran off the highways and upset. Thus far this year 83 upset after leaving the highway.

Green was just behind the ear, indicating suicide.

Left by his vicious abductors as dead, Warden White, who played the heroic lead in this drama of turmoil and death, was today reported improved at Cushing hospital, where he was taken by paramedics who found him lying beside the road. An emergency operation prevented the amputation of his left arm, physicians said.

The fleeing convicts split into two parties after they had commandeered three automobiles and one of them had shot Warden White who pleaded for mercy for the occupants of a farm house. The prisoners, ordered Elizabeth Gates, and her brother Joseph, Gates, 15, to a company there, when Warden spoke up in the behalf of a few minutes later he had a death shot, and was taken to the Cushing hospital. The convicts then fled without taking their intended hostages.

FREE ON FOOT

When the automobile struck a house, the party being on it, as a posse of 200 men closed in, the fleeing party had to turn back. Three of the escaping party were found in the house. A woman, a man and a woman were taken to the hospital. The man was taken to the hospital. The woman was taken to the hospital. The woman was taken to the hospital.

300 TRAPPED IN SNOWFALL

Pupils, Teachers, Workers On Indian Reservation Without Fuel In Storm.

GALLUP, N. Mex., Dec. 12.—Three hundred pupils, teachers and workers at the Ganado (Arizona) Indian mission were snowbound today without fuel. Ganado is in the heart of the Navajo reservation, fifty-eight miles northwest of here.

Dr. C. G. Salisbury, head of the mission, conducted by the Presbyterian church, summoned all available hands including the school children to saw wood to provide fuel to heat boilers for the hospital and children dormitories.

Motor trucks with coal from the mission's mine, 23 miles distant, were snow bound.

Snow was piled five and six feet high by a blizzard that swept the section Thursday and Friday.

Dr. Salisbury planned to reduce fences and frame buildings to wood for fuel if the storm continued.

POWERS DIES ON MARCH 13

Motion For New Trial Is Overruled by Judge Who Passes Sentence Today.

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Dec. 12.—Harry F. Powers, "Bluebeard slayer" of Mrs. Dorothy Lemke, Northboro, Mass., widow, he wooed through the mails, will die on the gallows next March 13, between sunrise and sunset.

Sentence of death was pronounced on the pudgy "mollifier Romeo" today by Judge John C. Southern in Harrison-co court here today when a motion for new trial filed by J. E. Law, defense counsel, was overruled.

Law announced immediately that an appeal would be carried to the circuit court.

Powers, led from his cell in the county jail to bear his doom, was unmoved as Judge Southern read the decree of death and fixed the date for the execution.

TWO RUM RUNNERS ESCAPE OFFICERS

DELAWARE, O., Dec. 12.—Search was continued throughout this district today for two unidentified rum runners who escaped in a hail of bullets last night from Motorcycle Officer Joe Davis.

Davis apprehended the runners on a road near Delaware and was following their car to police headquarters on his motorcycle when the runners suddenly accelerated their car and dashed away in a mad attempt to escape.

BUCKLEY TO TAKE OATH OF PAUPER

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 11.—As a part of his battle to escape payment of a $1,000 fine for conspiracy to violate the national prohibition law, former State Treasurer Bert B. Buckley, who was convicted in February, 1929, was to take the pauper's oath in federal court here today.

Buckley, who was ousted and sent to the U. S. Penitentiary at Atlanta after he was convicted of warming a brewery that a raid was about to be made, declared in his application for a pauper's standing that his assets are limited to $20.

His case was to be heard before U. S. Commissioner Joseph W. Horner late this afternoon.

PRISONERS ON BREAD, WATER

Four Inmates of Ross-Co Jail Who Struck Sheriff Are Being Punished.

CHILLICOTHE, O., Dec. 12.—Having lost their gamble for freedom, four prisoners who fled from the Ross County jail yesterday after overpowering the sheriff, were back behind the bars today being punished by solitary confinement and a ration of bread and water.

The prisoners who had hoped to make good their escape were Fred Starr and Lester Samra of San Francisco, and Venice Myers, federal prisoners, and Harley Hiles of Chillicothe held for the grand jury on charge of burglary.

The quartet succeeded in breaking way from the jail by luring Sheriff T. Ewing Argenbright into the bullpen on the pretext of wanting a window opened. When the sheriff entered the corridor, the prisoners slugged him, stole his keys, and fled.

All were recaptured without resistance a few hours later.

PRINCE RENOUNCES RIGHTS TO OFFICE

BUCHAREST, Dec. 12.—Prince Nicholas of Roumania, putting love before royal titles and honors, today renounced his princely prerogative and reduced himself to the status of a commoner, taking the name of Nicholas Brosteniu.

Under the terms of an agreement with his brother, King Carol, he will be permitted to remain in Roumania as the husband of Mme. Jana Lucia Delet, pretty divorcee with whom he eloped several weeks ago, thereby incurring the wrath of the royal house.

VIENNA, Dec. 12.—Rumors that the former Mme. Jana Lucia Delet, wife of former Prince Nicholas of Roumania, attempted suicide because of King Carol's objection to the match, were received here today by dispatches from Bucharest stating she had been confined to her apartment for several days.

Nicholas' marital difficulties found their way into Roumanian politics when several thousand persons staged a demonstration in Bucharest in protest against high taxes, shouting "Hail to Nicholas." Police waded in with drawn truncheons and dispersed the rioters. Seven persons were seriously injured and twenty suffered minor wounds.

KANE EXPECTED TO BE ACQUITTED

HAMPTON, Va., Dec. 12.—Professor Elisha Kent Kane, 3rd, will be a free man tonight—or completely bowled over by an absolutely unexpected verdict.

As the last day of his trial for the murder of his wife, Jenny, opened, the husky University of Tennessee professor confidently waited for vindication.

Any verdict but "not guilty" will be a terrific surprise to him. He has not the faintest notion of conviction. He never had, but if he needed anything to bolster up his optimism he has received it in the faces of the jurors as he told his own story from the witness stand.

HOSPITAL NEWS

Washington Neuner was moved from his room in the Bales building to Berger Hospital Friday night in the Albaugh invalid car.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Snyder

KINGSTON

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Jones entertained on Saturday evening, in honor of their son Marvin's fifteenth birthday at their beautiful country home east of town. The guest were: Mr. and Mrs. Albert Kerns and children, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Armstrong and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Wolliver (Lacy Jane Armstrong), Mr. and Mrs. William Wood, Mr. and Mrs. John Richter, and daughter Miss Effie Richter, Jake Glitt and Mrs. Ida Jones. Refreshments were served, consisting of fruit jello, ice-cream, cake and coffee. The honored guest, who was surprised by all of these friends, received several birthday gifts.

The Garden club met on Monday afternoon, Dec. 7, at the beautiful country home of Mrs. Arthur Hinkle. The president Mrs. Dennis H. Dreishbach called the meeting to order at 2:30 o'clock. The secretary, Mrs. F. B. Mowrey read the minutes of the Nov meeting which was followed by the calling of the roll. During the business session it was voted to have the "Golden Path" the club magazine sent to the secretary in a bunch and distributed at the meetings. Miss Carrie Umsted gave a fine report of the meeting of the Ross County Federation meeting held recently in Chillicothe. She reported Mr. Alderman's address on trees thoroughly and comprehensively in a very entertaining manner.

Mrs. Dreishbach reviewed a part of the book "The Americanization of Edward Bok" which was very interesting and stressed the point that the aim of the club was to make the ugly places beautiful. The subscriptions for the magazine "Better Homes and Gardens" was in charge of Mrs. Ed Marshall. The president announced that the next meeting would be held at the home of Mrs. Robert Cryder on the first Monday in January. The following program was presented, piano duet by Mrs. F. P. Long and Mrs. D. N. Famulener, reading "What the House Plant Means" by Mrs. G. W. McGinnis, Reading "Pine and Spruce" by Mrs. Alice Brundige. Mrs. Hinkle was assisted in serving cup cakes with whipped cream and jello and hot coffee by Mrs. Amos A. Leist and Miss Laura Bush. Among those present were—Mrs. Ed Winshall, Miss Mary McKenzie, Mrs. Madge Halsey, Mrs. Edgar Hassenpflug, Mrs. George Wright, Mrs. Roy Sharpe, Mrs. Robert Cryder, Mrs. F. P. Long, Mrs. D. N. Famulener, Mrs. Engle Kreisel, Miss Ora Rittenour, Mrs. M. D. H. Dreishbach, Mrs. L. A. Pyle, Mrs. Alice Brundige, Miss Carrie Umsted, Mrs. A. A. Friday 7:30 p. m. Meeting of the Women's Social Club.

There has been presented to the church a beautiful copy of the famous painting of Leonardo da Vinci's "Last Supper." Religion has been the foster-mother of the arts. We have overcome the iconoclasm of the Puritan which was inspired by religious strife. We are building many more beautiful churches. Ugliness and barrenness are not necessarily a token of piety. In fact a beautiful, decorous church building aids the spirit in its worship. Of old the psalmist said, "O worship the Lord in the beauty of holiness." More and more we are calling upon music and art to aid us in the uplift of our spirits to Him who sits enthroned in splendor beyond human ken. We worship in the fellowship of God's people. Come to church. Bring a friend with you.

THE VALUE OF MORALE

In connection with a great industrial plant is a large tool department employing many hundreds of men; this tool department produces no marketable commodity, produces no revenue, yet its part in the prosperity of the whole is great.

The minister renders a similar service to mankind. He produces no marketable commodity and brings in no revenue, but he keeps at their best those men who are engaged in producing commodities; he inspires hope, gives courage and strengthens the moral fiber. The minister is the morale officer of mankind.

Why not hold up the minister's hand and Come to Church Next Sunday?

CHURCH OF THE BRETHREN

L. D. Young, Pastor

The work of building a Christian civilization can not be done alone by professional missionaries and churchmen. It is everybody's business.

It is said that "Christianity was carried through Italy and the Roman Empire largely by the lay Christians who recommended their faith by their daily lives and their words."

The final victory of Christianity will be won by the humble, unadorned and unadorned company in every walk of life who commend their faith by their daily lives.

Will you have a share in that victory?

Sunday school and worship at 9:30 a. m. Charles Essick, supt.

John's Vision of Patmos, Revelation 1:4-18 for Sunday, December 13.

The revelation of John is a moving picture of the battlefield of good and evil. Giant armies of light and darkness are contending in a death struggle for the mastery. At times the scene is one of wild confusion and the outcome seems uncertain but finally the triumphant note comes in "The Kingdom of the world is become the kingdom of our Lord." The language is poetic, presented in figures; it was written at a time when Christians were being put to death for refusing to worship "The Beast" or the Roman emperor.

This book was written to cheer the churches of Asia Minor and serves as an encouragement to all Christians.

Vs. 4, 5. "John to the seven churches that are in Asia; Grace to you and peace, from whom is and who was and who is to come; and from the seven spirits that are before his throne and from Jesus Christ." John would make clear that this message is from God, from the Holy Spirit and from Jesus Christ. The Bible has meaning only as we feel that through it God is speaking.

V. 6: "And he made us to be a kingdom, to be priests unto his God and Father; and to him be the glory and to dominion forever and ever." Collectively the Christians are a kingdom, a kingdom of priests whose faith mounts into mastery over all worldly conditions and they are increasingly sure of their Lord.

V. 7. "Behold he cometh with the clouds; and every eye shall see him and they that pierced him; and all the tribes of the earth shall mourn over him. Even so, amen." The early disciples expected Jesus to come visibly in the clouds in their day and while Jesus has not yet come, yet he is ever coming in his providence to sustain his people and work out his purposes.

V. 8. "I am the Alpha and the Omega, saith the Lord God who is and who was and who is to come, the Almighty." He is the beginning and the consummation of all things. Our God is one of all might, not one of mere existence, but of boundless activity and power. He is not to be thought of as merely a creator, but one who is the greatest force in life today.

V. 9. "I, John, your brother and partaker with you in your tribulation and kingdom and patience which are in Jesus was in the isle that is called Patmos, for the word of God and the testimony of Jesus." John was exiled from Ephesus to the island of Patmos under the emperor Domitian about 95 A. D., likely because of his faithful gospel preaching.

V. 10. "I was in the spirit of the Lord's Day and I heard behind me a great voice as of a trumpet." John was fully conscious of the presence and control of the Holy Spirit; he strictly observed the Lord's Day as a day of worship.

V. 11. "Saying, what thou seest, write in a book and send it to the seven churches." God's messages are so important that they need to be written down that future generations may hear him speak; hence our Bible.

V. 12. "And I turned to see the voice that spake with me. And having turned I saw seven candlesticks." These seven candlesticks represent collectively the church of Christ, letting its light shine among men—a light derived from Him who is the light of the world.

V. 13. "And in the midst of the candlesticks one like unto the Son of Man, clothed with a garment down to the foot and girt about at the breasts with a golden girdle." Christ's position in the midst of the candlesticks shows his relation to the church—ruling over them and abiding with them; the girdle is the kingly badge.

V. 14. "And his head and hair were white as wool, white as snow; and his eyes were as a flame of fire." The white hair may indicate his stainless purity, dignity and wisdom; his flashing eye reveals searching omniscience. His brazen feet show strength and stability and his voice as the sound of waters suggest far reaching tones of majesty and authority.

V. 15. "When I looked, I fell upon my face, and I heard a voice as of a trumpet, saying, 'Stand up, and say unto the seven churches, the things which thou hast seen, and the things which are written in the book, and send them unto the seven churches.'"

V. 16. "And he said unto me, 'Write the things which thou hast seen, and the things which are written in the book, and send them unto the seven churches.'"

V. 17. "And he said unto me, 'Write the things which thou hast seen, and the things which are written in the book, and send them unto the seven churches.'"

V. 18. "And he said unto me, 'Write the things which thou hast seen, and the things which are written in the book, and send them unto the seven churches.'"

V. 19. "And he said unto me, 'Write the things which thou hast seen, and the things which are written in the book, and send them unto the seven churches.'"

V. 20. "And he said unto me, 'Write the things which thou hast seen, and the things which are written in the book, and send them unto the seven churches.'"

V. 21. "And he said unto me, 'Write the things which thou hast seen, and the things which are written in the book, and send them unto the seven churches.'"

V. 22. "And he said unto me, 'Write the things which thou hast seen, and the things which are written in the book, and send them unto the seven churches.'"

V. 23. "And he said unto me, 'Write the things which thou hast seen, and the things which are written in the book, and send them unto the seven churches.'"

The Board of Foreign Missions of the Methodist Episcopal church recently authorized its treasurer in China to spend $5000 for immediate relief through Methodist hospitals the thousands of Chinese Christians in danger of death or starvation resulting from the floods.

In the industrial town of Tubize, Belgium, near Brussels, a church has recently been built of glass except for the stone foundation. A similar edifice was recently constructed in Paris.

The Rev. Edward J. Hanna, archbishop of San Francisco was recently awarded the American Hebrew medal for the promotion of better understanding between Jews and Christians in America for the years 1931. Former Secretary of War Newton D. Baker was given the award last year.

Final arrangements have been completed at Westinghouse radio station KDKA, Pittsburgh, where by radio messages may be transmitted from Presbyterian representatives in the United States to their missionaries in foreign lands.

There has been presented to the church a beautiful copy of the famous painting of Leonardo Da Vinci's "Last Supper." Religion has been the foster-mother of the arts. We have overcome the iconoclasm of the Puritan which was inspired by religious strife. We are building many more beautiful churches. Ugliness and barrenness are not necessarily a token of piety. In fact a beautiful, decorous church building aids the spirit in its worship. Of old the psalmist said, "O worship the Lord in the beauty of Holiness." More and more we are calling upon music and art to aid us in the uplift of our spirits to Him who sits enthroned in splendor beyond human ken. We worship in the fellowship of God's people. Come to church. Bring a friend with you.

THE VALUE OF MORALE

In connection with a great industrial plant is a large tool department employing many hundreds of men; this tool department produces no marketable commodity, produces no revenue, yet its part in the prosperity of the whole is great.

The minister renders a similar service to mankind. He produces no marketable commodity and brings in no revenue, but he keeps at their best those men who are engaged in producing commodities; he inspires hope, gives courage and strengthens the moral fiber. The minister is the morale officer of mankind.

Why not hold up the minister's hand and Come to Church Next Sunday?

The work of building a Christian civilization can not be done alone by professional missionaries or churchmen. It is everybody's business.

It is said that "Christianity was carried through Italy and the Roman Empire largely by the lay Christians who recommended their faith by their daily lives and their words."

The final victory of Christianity will be won by the humble, unadorned and unordained company in every walk of life who commend their faith by their daily lives.

Will you have a share in that victory?

Creamed Comments On S.S. Lesson

John's Vision of Patmos, Revelation 1:4-15 for Sunday, December 13.

The revelation of John is a moving picture of the battlefield of good and evil. Giant armies of light and darkness are contending in a death struggle for the mastery. At times the scene is one of wild confusion and the outcome seems uncertain but finally the triumphant note comes in "The Kingdom of our Lord."

The language is poetic presented in figures. It was written at a time when Christians were being put to death for refusing to worship "The Beast" or the Roman emperor.

This book was written to cheer the churches of Asia Minor and served as an encouragement to all Christians.

John is the only one of the seven spirits that appears before the throne and from Jesus Christ. John would make clear that the message is from God from the Holy Spirit and from Jesus Christ.

The Bible has meaning and we feel that the church of today should have a new revelation.

kingdom, to be priests unto his God and Father; and to him be the glory and to dominion forever and ever." Collectively the Christians are a kingdom, a kingdom of priests whose faith mounts into mastery over all worldly conditions and they are increasingly sure of their Lord.

V. 7. "Behold he cometh with the clouds; and every eye shall see him and they that pierced him; and all the tribes of the earth shall mourn over him. Even so, amen." The early disciples expected Jesus to come visibly in the clouds in their day and while Jesus has not yet so come, yet he is ever coming in his providence to sustain his people and work out his purposes.

V. 8. "I am the Alpha and the Omega, saith the Lord God who is and who was and who is to come, the Almighty." He is the beginning and the consummation of all things. Our God is one of all might, not one of mere existence, but of boundless activity and power. He is not to be thought of as merely a creator, but one who is the greatest force in life today.

V. 9. "I, John, your brother and partaker with you in your tribulation and kingdom and patience which are in Jesus was in the isle that is called Patmos for the word of God and the testimony of Jesus." John was exiled from Ephesus to the island of Patmos under the emperor Domitian about 95 A. D. likely because of his faithful gospel preaching.

V. 10. "I was in the spirit of the Lord's Day and I heard behind me a great voice as of a trumpet." John was fully conscious of the presence and control of the Holy Spirit; he strictly observed the Lord's Day as a day of worship.

V. 11. "Saying what thou seest, write in a book and send it to the seven churches." God's messages are so important that they need to be written down that future generations may hear him speak, hence our Bible.

V. 12. "And I turned to see the voice that spake with me. And having turned I saw seven candlesticks." These seven candlesticks represent collectively the church of Christ, letting its light shine among men—a light derived from Him who is the light of the world.

V. 13. "And in the midst of the candlesticks one like unto the Son of Man, clothed with a garment down to the foot and girt about at the breasts with a golden girdle." Christ's position in the midst of the candlesticks shows his relation to the church—ruling over them and abiding with them; the girdle is the kingly badge.

V. 14. "And his head and hair were white as wool, white as snow; and his eyes were as a flame of fire." The white hair may indicate his stainless purity, dignity and wisdom; his flashing eye reveals searching omniscience. His brazen feet show strength and stability and his voice as the sound of waters suggest far reaching tones of majesty and authority.

According to a recent survey of colleges conducted by Dr. H. W. Searles of the University of Southern California the following statements were made relative to the attitude of students toward God: "Less than 5 percent of college students are atheists and 21 percent of them find prayer valuable—Approximately 44 percent of them undergo some sort of change in their conception of God during the years they spend in colleges and universities. The greatest change is noted in the junior and senior years and there is a swing back to a personal conception of the Almighty after graduate study."

The Rev. Edward J. Hanna, archbishop of San Francisco was recently awarded the American Hebrew medal for the promotion of better understanding between Jews and Christians in America for the years 1931. Former Secretary of War Newton D. Baker was given the award last year.

Both Hi School Court Teams Gain Victories

Boys Win 21-16, Girls 31 To 15

Circleville's high school basketball team opened their season with victories Friday evening, the boys winning, 21-16, and the girls 31-15, with Rockbridge's two teams in the losing end of both games.

Both local teams were given a hard time by the boys' coming in the first few minutes of play and the girls' coming just before the end of the first half.

In the boys contest Rockbridge scored two field goals in rapid succession after the topoff before the Red and Black was able to hit the hoop. Rockbridge increased its lead with a free throw and at the end of the period had a 5-2 margin.

LOCALS IN SPURT

But that was as far as the Rockbridge boys went in their efforts to gain a victory. The Tigers opened their offense in the second period and registered three field goals while the zone defense worked better in this period than at any time during the game and he half ended 8-5 in Circleville's favor, Rockbridge being held without a point.

A goal by the center, Welch, was Rockbridge's quota in the third period, while the Tiger offense was looking in real fashion with Merle Davis and Carl Purcell hitting the hoop regularly on good passes from the other three men on the team. The third session ended 17-10.

Rockbridge scored nine points in the final period, but the local margin was too much. Welch and Johnson, Rockbridge forward and center, did the entire scoring for their team with Walker, flashy forward going without a point.

The Red and Black zone defense worked very well with the exception of the center spot, nearly all of Rockbridge's points coming from just in front of the basket.

TIGERETTES STRONG

The Tiger girls started out like a hot affire to snatch an early 8-7 lead over their opponents but before the half was ended the score stood Circleville 11, Rockbridge 10.

But the Rockbridge girls had 'done their darndest.' The score at the end of the third period was 27-10 for the locals.

With some smoothing out the girls' team is expected to be very strong. Fitzpatrick missed many shots in this game that she probably won't miss again this season and despite this fact she tallied four field goals six free throws and one one point shot. Jane Hittler seem to have found her eye and scored six times from the field, five of her goals coming in the second half. Bennett looked good at the other forward and although she scored only once her floor game and passing is good.

The defense, Henderson, Reigel, and Betts, looked strong. Johnny Heiskell refereed both games.

BATBATTALINO K. O.'S SINGER

Rugged Featherweight Champion Assumes Role of Killer In Bout Friday.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—Christopher (Bat) Battalino, rugged featherweight champion, was the sensation of the fight world today as a result of his quick knockout over Al Singer, former lightweight champion, in the second round of their scheduled 10-round bout at Madison Square Garden last night.

The swarthy Italian, astounding a capacity crowd of 20,000 fans in his new role as a killer, scored a technical knockout over the New York idol in 1:31 of the second round after flooring him five times.

"Bat" qualified for a lightweight championship bout at the Garden next month with Tony Canzoneri, two divisions above him in the fight scale. He has high hopes of becoming a triple titleholder by beating Canzoneri and then winning the junior lightweight crown from Kid Chocolate.

Battalino shoved Singer out of the boxing ring in jig time. Undismayed by three stiff rights to the jaw in the first minute, he floored Singer with his first real punch, a vicious left hook to the stomach. Singer, without taking a count, was floored again by a wild left to the temple. Bat chased his opponent around the ring and sent him crashing to the canvas a third time with a left hook.

There being only a certain number of hours in the day and so many pages in the paper, some of us have thought of giving up Aimee Sample McPherson.

Love Me, Love My Horse!

"And everywhere that Mary went—" might be paraphrased to "the horse was sure to go" in the case of Antoinette Sharp, of Dallas, Texas, who is a freshman at Wellesley College, Mass. When Miss Sharp came up to study at the exclusive school she could not bear to be parted from "Shorty," her favorite cow pony, so she brought the lucky equine along. She is shown with the collegiate steed, all dressed up in real cowgirl style, ten gallon hat and all, as she gave him a little exercise in the first snow storm of the season.

NEWS FROM THE OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY OF STATE

COLUMBUS, O. — Volume 114, Laws of Ohio, are being shipped by Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown to all county auditors of the state for local distribution. The Ohio roster of township and municipal officers is being completed but will not be ready for distribution for several months.

The kiddies of the Capital City as well as those who may be visiting here, are having a great time during the holiday season as guests of Santa Claus, who gives them free tickets for rides on his merry-go-round, which has been erected under canvas in the State House yard. The down town electrical decorations are also attracting people from scores of cities, towns, villages and the rural community.

The 4,450 inmates in the Ohio Penitentiary this year will enjoy a Christmas dinner of roast loin of pork with oyster dressing, candied sweet potatoes, gravy, bread, butter, coffee and possibly pie or cake. The pork being raised by the state, reduces the cost of the dinner per man to 17 cents. Try buying a Christmas dinner on the outside for 17 cents. Today's prisoners will enjoy the holidays with special movie shows and opening their Christmas boxes from friends and relatives.

Final figures on the general election of November 3, 1931, which are on file with Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown, reveal that 1,737,576 votes were cast, as compared with 2,018,281 votes cast on November 4, 1930. The $7,500,000 bond issue carried in only two

Pupils, Teachers, Workers On Indian Reservation Without Fuel In Storm.

GALLUP, N. Mex., Dec. 12.—Three hundred pupils, teachers and workers at the Ganado (Arizona) Indian mission were snowbound today without fuel. Ganado is in the heart of the Navajo reservation, fifty-eight miles northwest of here.

Dr. C. G. Salisbury, head of the mission, conducted by the Presbyterian church, summoned all available hands including the school children to saw wood to provide fuel to heat boilers for the hospital and children dormitories.

Motor trucks with coal from the mission's mine, 23 miles distant, were snow bound.

Snow was piled five and six feet high by a blizzard that swept the section Thursday and Friday.

Dr. Salisbury planned to reduce fences and frame buildings to wood for fuel if the storm continued.

POWERS DIES ON MARCH 13

Motion For New Trial is Overruled by Judge Who Passes Sentence Today.

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Dec. 12.—Harry F. Powers, "Bluebeard slayer" of Mrs. Dorothy Lemke, Northboro, Mass., widow, he would through the mails, will die on the gallows next March 13, between sunrise and sunset.

Sentence of death was pronounced on the pudgy "mollarder Romeo" today by Judge John C. Southern in Harrison-co court here today when a motion for new trial filed by J. Ed Law, defense counsel, was overruled.

Law announced immediately that an appeal would be carried to the circuit court.

Powers, led from his cell in the county jail to hear his doom, was unmoved as Judge Southern read the decree of death and fixed the date for the execution.

TWO RUM RUNNERS ESCAPE OFFICERS

DELAWARE, O., Dec. 12.—Search was continued throughout this district today for two unidentified rum runners who escaped in a hall of bullets last night from Motorcycle Officer Joe Davis.

Davis apprehended the runners on a road near Delaware and was following their car to police headquarters on his motorcycle when the runners suddenly accelerated their car and dashed away in a mad attempt to escape.

BUCKLEY TO TAKE OATH OF PAUPER

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 11.—As a part of his battle to escape payment of a $1,000 fine for conspiracy to violate the national prohibition law, former State Treasurer Bert B. Buckley, who was convicted in February, 1929, was to take the pauper's oath in federal court here today.

Buckley, who was ousted and sent to the U. S. Penitentiary at Atlanta after he was convicted of warning a brewery that a raid was about to be made, declared in his application for a pauper's standing that his assets are limited to $20. His case was to be heard before U. S. Commissioner Joseph W. Horner late this afternoon.

WASHINGTON TWP.

John Paul Grafts was taken to Berger hospital Tuesday. He is threatened with appendicitis.

We have several good magazines in our library now. We hope all the students will take advantage of them.

David Adams headed our honor roll the last six weeks, receiving four E's. Martha Hitler and Olive Hartley each received three E's. This represents unusual work and they are to be commended. Earl Dean and Clyde Leist made an average of G which is considered good work.

Our boys' basketball team plays Saltcreek at Saltcreek Friday evening.

Two new pupils entered school this week: Kathleen Van Fossen in the sixth grade and Zelma Van Fossen in the first year in high school.

PRISONERS ON BREAD, WATER

Four Inmates of Ross-Co Jail Who Struck Sheriff Are Being Punished.

CHILLICOTHE, O., Dec. 12.—Having lost their gamble for freedom, four prisoners who fled from the Ross County jail yesterday after overpowering the sheriff, were back behind the bars today being punished by solitary confinement and a ration of bread and water.

The prisoners who had hoped to make good their escape were Fred Starr and Lester Semrau of San Francisco, and Venice Myers, federal prisoners, and Harley Hiles of Chillicothe held for the grand jury on charge of burglary.

The quartet succeeded in breaking way from the jail by luring Sheriff T. Ewing Argenbright into the bullpen on the pretext of wanting a window opened. When the sheriff entered the corridor, the prisoners slugged him, stole his keys, and fled.

All were recaptured without resistance a few hours later.

PRINCE RENOUNCES RIGHTS TO OFFICE

BUCHAREST, Dec. 12.—Prince Nicholas of Roumania, putting before royal titles and honors, today renounced his princely prerogative and reduced himself to the status of a commoner, taking the name of Nicholas Brosteniu.

Under the terms of an agreement with his brother, King Carol, he will be permitted to remain in Roumania as the husband of Mme. Jana Lucia Deletj, pretty divorcee with whom he eloped several weeks ago, thereby incurring the wrath of the royal house.

VIENNA, Dec. 12.—Rumors that the former Mme. Jana Lucia Deletj, wife of former Prince Nicholas of Roumania, attempted suicide because of King Carol's objection to the match, were received here today by dispatches from Bucharest stating she had been confined to her apartment for several days.

Nicholas' marital difficulties found their way into Roumanian politics when several thousand persons staged a demonstration in Bucharest in protest against high taxes, shouting "Hail to Nicholas." Police waded in with drawn truncheons and dispersed the rioters. Seven persons were seriously injured and twenty suffered minor wounds.

KANE EXPECTED TO BE ACQUITTED

HAMPTON, Va., Dec. 12.—Professor Elisha Kent Kane, 3rd, will be a free man tonight—or completely bowled over by an absolutely unexpected verdict.

As the last day of his trial for the murder of his wife, Jenny, opened, the husky University of Tennessee professor confidently waited for vindication.

Any verdict but "not guilty" will be a terrific surprise to him. He has not the faintest notion of conviction. He never had, but if he needed anything to bolster up his optimism he has received it in the faces of the jurors as he told his own story from the witness stand.

HOSPITAL NEWS

Washington Neuner was moved from his room in the Bales building to Berger Hospital Friday night in the Albaugh invalid car.

KINGSTON

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Jones entertained on Saturday evening, in honor of their son Marvin's fifteenth birthday at their beautiful country home east of town. The guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Albert Kerns and children, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Armstrong and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Wolliver (Lacy Jane Armstrong) Mr. and Mrs. William Wood, Mr. and Mrs. John Richter, and daughter Miss Effie Jones. Refreshments were served consisting of fruit jello, ice-cream, cake and coffee. The honored guest, who was surprised by all of these friends, received several birthday gifts.

The Garden club met on Monday afternoon, Dec. 7, at the beautiful country home of Mrs. Arthur Hinkle. The president Mrs. Dennis H. Dreisbach called the meeting to order at 2:30 o'clock. The secretary, Mrs. F. B. Mowrey read the minutes of the Nov. meeting which was followed by the calling of the roll. During the business session it was voted to have the "Golden Path" the club magazine sent to the secretary in a bunch and distributed at the meetings. Miss Carrie Umsted gave a fine report of the meeting of the Ross County Federation meeting held recently in Chillicothe. She reported Mr. Alderman's address on trees thoroughly and comprehensively in a very entertaining manner.

Mrs. Dreisbach reviewed a part of the book "The Americanization of Edward Bok" which was very interesting and stressed the point that the aim of the club was to make the ugly places beautiful. The subscriptions for the magazine "Better Homes and Gardens" was in charge of Mrs. Ed Marshall. The president announced that the next meeting would be held at the home of Mrs. Robert Cryder on the first Monday in January. The following program was presented.

Music by Mrs. F. P. Long and Mrs. D. N. Famulener, reading "What the House Plant Means" by Mrs. G. W. McGinnis, Reading "Pine and Spruce" by Mrs. Alice Brundage. Killers

CAPITAL punishment is losing ground. In states where it is still possible to obtain from juries first degree murder verdicts with the death penalty that institution of capital punishment is shaky, and while more and more commonwealths are abolishing it, none are going back to it as a solution to their crime problems. However one may feel about "legalized murder," there are crimes that can be apparent than that of a mad dog. The existence of such criminals materially diminishes the peace and happiness of the world; so long as the alive they may pop up at any moment and cut the nearest throat. Has the progress of civilization rid mankind of most of the old human fears—the fear of witches, the fear of ghosts, the fear of wild beasts, the fear of Hell? Then it has yet to rid us of one of the worst of these fears—the fear of assassination.

But not all murderers are professionals, and not all murders are completely without justification. It is over the line that difficulties arise, and it is there that the critics of capital punishment find grist for their mill. When people talk of abolishing capital punishment they usually have in mind those unfortunate who kill in anger or out of fear or because of jealousy. And those who argue for the retention of the death penalty usually want it for the professional killer, the cold-blooded gunman and the bandit. They are not trading upon common ground.

Dig Deep

DIG deep if you would have the richest treasures. One may wash gold dust from the shallow stream, but the coveted nuggets of gold is found buried deep in the bowels of the earth. Those who would find diamonds must move mountains of earth and "pull many a gem of purest ray serene the dark, unfathomed caves of ocean bear."

The profoundest beauty in a great painting, or the work of sculpture and the rarest jewel of wisdom on the printed pages will not be found on the surface. Art does not surrender its true self to those who will not "dig deep." One may wear gold and jewels without descending to "unfathomed caves" or burrowing underground, but for the richest treasures in literature, painting, music and sculpture one must do his own prospecting. Other may create it, but the individual must discover it for himself. Numbered among the natural resources of the earth are coal, gas, and the various minerals. Art is an artificial resource but of them all it alone is inexhaustible.

What applies in the field of art and treasure-hunting is equally applicable to more workaday affairs. Deep digging pays in business, industry, labor, housekeeping, farming or study. In many phrases of this universal truth is expressed to youth to "get out and dig" if it would accomplish something in life.

This Time May Come

The time may come. When someone will not be extolling the "good old days."

When the comic sheets will not pretend that husbands are henpecked.

When a reporter, a detective and a parson on the stage in the movies resemble a reporter, a detective and a parson in real life.

When popular magazines will think up some new way to adorn their covers without glorifying the American girl.

When a man will work as hard as he leads his wife and his friends to think he works.

When an employee admits he is being paid all he's worth.

When a man gives up his automobile and explains that he cannot afford one.

When suckers will not be stung by fake investments schemes.

When boys will not be lured by the perfunctory use of how are you? as an invitation to give an "I am fine" reply.

Yea, the time may come. But we don't expect to be alive to enjoy that "millennium dawn."

Road to Success

In the attainment of a well-founded success there has never been found a substitute for honest labor with the hands or mind. The ages have recognized this as an immutable truth, and every age, including the present, has lived its life by following its secrets after fame and fortune without paying the price in work. Some sage has said that to attain success is half as much effort as you would exert in attempting to lose it. Success without work, without going through the unorthodox that it takes less mental effort to climb to legitimate success than to climb to an illegitimate

The CZARINA'S RUBIES

by Sidney Warwick

READ THIS FIRST

Frank Severn has been kidnapped from his country home, Beggar's Court, apparently by persons trying to steal the fabulous and sinister Czarina Rubies. Severn's friend, Jim Wynter, enlists the help of Bill Grayson, a lawyer, and they search the grounds, discovering a secret stairway and a locked door in the GAL 61.

ruins of an ancient chapel. While they plan to force the door a wall collapses, burying it under tons of masonry. They suspect Martin, a servant of Severn's, of dynamiting the wall. They begin to doubt also the sincerity of Sant, Severn's attorney.

In a village nearby they meet an ex-convict, Isham, who goes on crutches. Also they encounter a mysterious Dr. Martell, whose presence Martin, the servant, tries for some reason to conceal.

Grayson's wife and Katharine Faring, to whom the rubies rightfully belong by inheritance from her Russian grandfather, return to London while the two men plan to search Beggar's Court again at night. Severn discovers Isham, his crutches laid aside, examining a motor boat in a boathouse. Almost at the same moment he is fired on from the darkness and drops to the ground to save his life.

NOW GO ON

CHAPTER XXXVI

But luck was with him. His groping hand touched the great exposed roots, still partly covered with the clinging earth out of which they had been torn. Jim Wynter felt several degrees happier as he slipped behind this cover.

And still no sign on his enemy's part. Jim had spent the last few moments thinking hard. The man who had dogged him was not far away, might even be nearer than he thought. The question was whether he was to wait for that figure in the shadow to take the initiative, or to take it himself.

Perhaps it was that uncertainty as to his now invisible quarry's movements that made this furtive gunman apparently so wary about showing himself in the open after those two shots had gone wide.

CONTEMPT

It might be that this specialist in treacherous murder, skulking in the dark, shooting from the dark, Jim told himself contemptuously, was out to run no risks himself. Was he apprehensive lest if he ventured out of cover the man he had stalked might seize advantage of the confusing obscurity in this grim game of blind man's bluff to spring out on him from some unsuspected hiding place, take him by surprise? Thought it less risky to bide his time on the chance of getting in another shot?

Well, what if he could strike at a weak spot in this seemingly none too confident enemy's nerves? A thought had suddenly flashed across Jim Wynter's mind with the remembrance of something in his pocket—something he had bought at Pensilotti before he and Bill had motored back to Beggar's Court. Something he had planned to use tonight, though not in this way or to meet any such emergency of danger. A wonderful bit of luck that purchased! Thanks to it Jim saw a sudden chance of turning the tables—a sporting chance worth gambling on! And in those waiting moments of suspended hostilities he began to make his preparations swiftly and silently.

Was that a movement in the shadow? Jim's ears caught a faint rustle as of stealthy footsteps, as it he enemy was tired of watchful inaction. And simultaneously came a sound from the boathouse too. Above the faint lapping of the waters of the estuary against the bank he heard a sound as of some one stepping into a boat moored by the landing stage there.

The man calling himself John Isham, who had never been seen in the village without his crutches, must have been able to move very expeditiously without their help. Jim Wynter caught the sudden muffled splash of oars dipping into the water.

And then out of the darkness came a swift rush of feet toward the bank of the stream—and then Jim knew that he had two enemies, not one, to reckon with.

"He's got away by water—slipped through our hands, damn him," he heard a low voice mutter in furious chagrin not very far away.

So those unknown enemies of his—he could faintly make out the two shadowy figures as they raced to the bank to peer out into the dark of the estuary—imagined that the man now pulling out into midstream, to be carried along swiftly by the tide, was their intended quarry, Jim Wynter.

Though they were less than a dozen yards away, their features were still indistinguishable in the dim obscurity, though one of them impressed Jim with a sense of vague familiarity. He was pretty certain it was Martin—a fact that would not be in the least surprising.

Martin, who knew the secret behind that underground door was suspected.

It was the other silhouetted figure who flung up an arm as if to fire after the escaping man; they believed to be Wynter; then evidently thought better of the impulse.

"What does that interfering fool, Wynter, suspect, to bring him nosing about here? We've got to stop him, Frome, before he can find out anything to make him dangerous. He may even be dangerous now."

It was Martin's voice, and there was an ugly ring about the words that were just loud enough to reach the man about whom they were spoken.

And almost simultaneously there came faintly to Jim's ears the sound of a distant car. Was it Bill Grayson's car?

But whether Bill's car or not, a swift impulse had decided Jim Wynter that he was going to take an active hand in the game now, try out that sporting chance.

It might be a reckless impulse, since these men were under the impression that he had escaped by boat and he had only to lie low in no further danger. But his blood was up and with that sense of mounting passionate wrath against these men who had planned treacherous cold-blooded murder, Jim Wynter was in no mood to play for safety.

Martin he had already recognized; he was determined to see too who that second would-be killer was. Whatever the risk, he was ready to take it—it was worth taking! And the sheer unexpectedness, the very audacity of his plan should carry it through.

Besides, if Bill were in that near-by motor car—

"Now's the moment, Jimmy—now!"

In the darkness a little smile crept about his lips. But his eyes were not smiling. Dangerous eyes, they looked just then.

There was just the faintest scintilla of a match, and then as if a vivid searchlight had lit up the wide grounds a blinding white glare swallowed up the darkness in one swift moment; picking out clearly for Jim's eyes the suddenly startled faces of those two would-be secret slayers.

"Got you both nicely covered!" clicked out Jim sharply, simultaneously with that white explosion of light, to the two men whose identity was no longer a mystery: Martin, as he had guessed, and the man he had seen with Martell in that upper room of the Cross Keys Inn. "And it won't be healthy for the first man who moves!"

Nothing more than a super-dose of flash-powder that press photographers use! But to the two men it startled them, who had never dreamed that their intended victim was still within a few yards of them! Had come the swift unerring sense of having been caught in a trap.

In that vivid white-lit moment Jim Wynter, with that cry on his lips, could see the sudden jump the swarthy-faced man from the inn gave, the long-barreled automatic had spun from his hand. As for Martin—but there was no longer a Martin visible on the bank.

Before that blinding flash Martin near the edge of the bank, had stepped back involuntarily with a scared start, lost his footing on the sloping, slippery brink, to disappear backward with a wild half-uttered cry that the turbid waters drowned.

Swiftly the fleeting glare had sunk and died out, and the darkness swam up again like a flood. And scarcely less swiftly Jim had leapt out from cover, to make a dash to where now one figure alone stood on the bank.

SURPRISE

The unmoved man heard rather than saw Jim's rush in the swiftly falling, intensified darkness. In a panic he pulled himself out of that first dazed consternation to stoop or that fallen weapon, but his fingers had not time to close on it.

"You treacherous, murderous swine!" broke from Jim fiercely, his eyes blazing.

His arm shot out and behind the blow was all the released passionate fury of a man with good cause to see red; an uppercut that made the other's teeth click, almost lifting him off his feet. With a gasping sob the man staggered and collapsed.

"And that's that!" Jim Wynter remarked to himself, with a sudden grim satisfaction in his face.

Without a second glance at the fallen man, he picked up the long-barreled automatic that had been responsible for the narrowest shave in his life.

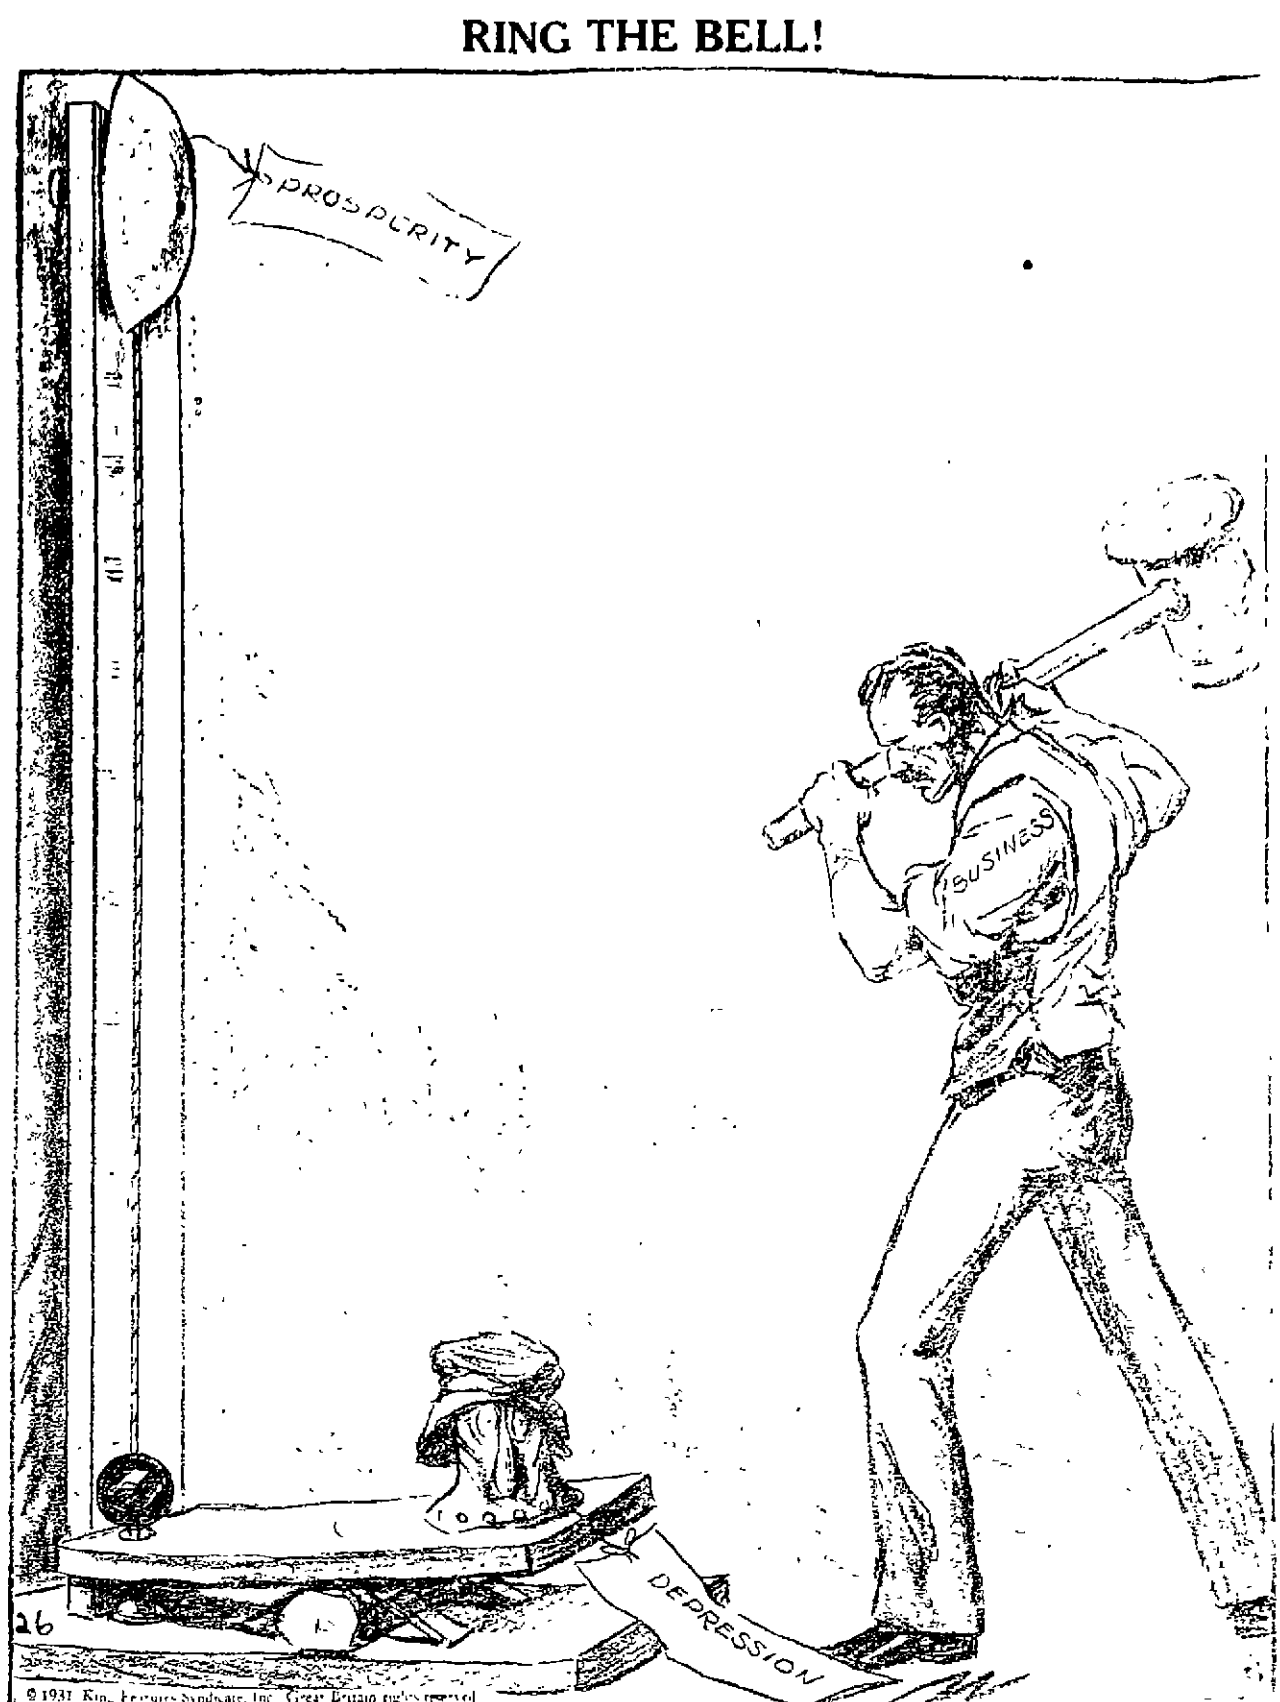

Martin, his face expressionless no longer, with terror staring out of his eyes, was clinging for dear life to a post of the landing steps of the boathouse, which he had clutched at desperately as the current swept him down. He was in no immediate danger, as Jim saw—and was hard-headed enough to turn a face or stone to the terrified screaming man.

There came two footsteps on the horn of a car that had hoisted by the side gate of Beggar's Court.

As Jim gave an answering shout to furnish Bill Grayson with a clue to his direction, from the house itself a figure came running across the grounds toward them, evidently puzzled and startled by that fleeting white glare that must have touched the dark distant windows of Beggar's Court. Jim recognized the hurrying, panting figure before he could distinguish his features.

"Hard luck, Sant!" he said with a smiling shrug. "Afraid you're just too late to see the fun!"

High Blood Pressure No Indication of Short Life

Millions Have Lived Normal Expectancy Despite This Handicap, Says Dr. Copeland, but It IS Essential That Certain Precautions Be Taken

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

RECENTLY the death of a nationally known man was recorded. This man had been told he had high blood pressure. He never paid any attention to it, ignoring the advice of his physicians.

The normal blood pressure for an adult ranges from 110 to 140. In a given person this may vary from time to time. Women, as a rule, have lower blood pressure than men.

Contrary to the common belief, redness of the face is not necessarily a sign of high blood pressure. There are other causes for this symptom. In fact, many persons with high blood pressure show no such sign and may even appear abnormally pale.

High blood pressure is a sign of abnormality in persons of middle age. Usually it results from some change in the blood vessels of the body, or in the vital organs, particularly the kidneys and heart. It is essentially a condition of adult life. In youth it is usually temporary and is easily corrected. High blood pressure frequently requires a habitually faulty diet. The regular diet may provide an excess of certain substances. When these are removed, the pressure comes down to normal. Excessive activity and the strain of certain occupations help to bring about this condition. When the wrong living is corrected the blood pressure is restored to normal.

It is important that the underlying constitutional disorder of heart, lung or kidney, be investigated if these fundamental causes are overlooked it is impossible to reduce the high blood pressure.

The greatest danger attached to persistent high blood pressure is brain hemorrhage. Cerebral hemorrhage, or, as it is commonly known, "stroke," may be traced in most instances to high blood pressure. There are other causes for cerebral hemorrhage, but they are not as common as high blood pressure.

Cerebral hemorrhage occurs because of the breaking down of small blood vessels in the brain. Increased pressure has much to do with this. There is one thing I want you to know. You must not depend on one of the numerous preparations advertised as "sure cures" for high blood pressure. There is no one medicine known to the medical world that will definitely cure high blood pressure.

However, it can only be controlled by careful regulation of the diet and strict attention to the rules of hygiene. An abundance of fresh air and sunlight, sufficient hours of sleep and relaxation, will help a whole lot. If you have high blood pressure do not think your happiness is ended. Millions of men and women have lived out the normal expectancy of life in spite of it. But you do need to take certain precautions, and having done so, may go about your daily affairs.

Charlotte Greenwood and Bert Laehr in a scene from "Flying High," at the Cliftona Theatre Sunday and Monday.

Theaters

AT THE CLIFTONA

Two of the funniest human beings America has produced, Bert Laehr, America's most imitated comedian, and Charlotte Greenwood, and co-featured in M-G-M's uproarious musical talkie, "Flying High," which will open tomorrow at the Cliftona Theatre for two days.

Laehr did not make his debut in talkies before this because he was in such demand by New York theatregoers. With "Hold Everything!" he cascaded at one leap to the very top of the comedy ladder.

He invented dozens of famous slang expressions, "Oh boy," "Some fun, eh kid," etc. His extremely pliable face, seemingly range of comic expressions, in "Flying High" which is an adaptation of the musical comedy in which Laehr scored on Broadway he plays his famous role of Rusty Krause, dumb aviation inventor. The whole picture, in fact, is a laughable satire on aviation.

Rough-house Courtship
Charlotte Greenwood plays Pansy Potts, an amorous waitress who desires to marry an aviator. Laehr is "it," and their rough and tumble courtship is carried out in an aviation show, at an airport and thousands of feet in the air.

AT THE GRAND

Two famous stars of the silent screen (day) are staging a comeback in audible films and have prominent roles in the Fox Movietone production "Not Exactly Gentlemen" set at by Benjamin Stollhoff and featuring Victor McLaglen with Fay Wray in the feminine lead.

Robert Warwick and Franklyn Farnum are the two. Warwick has been in Europe for several years appearing in stage and screen productions while Farnum, an athletic star of days gone by, has come out of practical retirement for this picture.

"Not Exactly Gentlemen" is a thrilling, pulsating story of the famous Dakota land rush with McLaglen, Cody, and Eddie Gribbon as three "wanted" men who learn that Fay Wray, has a map in her possession which would locate gold. Their efforts to secure that map make of "Not Exactly Gentlemen" one of the most powerful audible pictures filmed in years. It will be shown at the Grand Theatre Saturday.

AT THE CIRCLE

One of the most daring love stories ever screened provides the romantic background for the thrilling air scenes in "Hell's Angels," Howard Hughes' super-spectacle of war-time aviation now playing at the Circleville theatre.

Amazing and unconventional love scenes are depicted for the first time with unvarnished realism, presenting a war-time heroine in a frank and astounding characterization. Jean Harlow, who plays the leading feminine role in "Hell's Angels," opposite Ben Lyon and James Hall, became a star overnight as a result of her performance in this picture, which marks her inaugural appearance of the screen.

Her performance was so vivid and realistic that a nationally known dramatic critic declared she was "the most sensuous personality that has ever graced the screen."

The modernistic treatment of sex in "Hell's Angels" has created wide discussion among women fans, and the feminine element is always well represented at all performances.

HEAR STEPS—SCREAMED

NORRISTOWN, Pa.—Shriill screams of a woman in Bald, suburb, brought a squad of police to a home. With drawn revolvers they cautiously approached the house. The front door was thrown open and there the officers found a little white dog, having the time of a little tearing up a magazine which he would drag up the stairs and then let roll to the bottom.

On the third floor, police found Emma Batiste, the maid, in the source of the screams. "I heard steps," she explained, "Steps and rustling and it kept coming closer and closer. So I screamed."

Killers
CAPITAL punishment is losing ground. In states where it is still possible to obtain from juries first degree murder verdicts with the death penalty that institution of capital punishment is shaky, and, while more and more commonwealths are abolishing it, none are going back to it as a solution to their crime problems. However one may feel about "legalized murder," there are crimes that can be apparent than that of a mad dog. The existence of such criminals materially diminishes the peace and happiness of the world; so long as the are alive they may pop up at any moment and cut the nearest throat. Has the progress of civilization rid mankind of most of the old human fears—the fear of witches, the fear of ghosts, the fear of wild beasts, the fear of Hell? Then it has yet to rid us of one of the worst of these fears—the fear of assassination.

But not all murderers are professionals, and not all murders are completely without justification. It is over the line that difficulties arise, and it is there that the critics of capital punishment find grist for their mill.

When people talk of abolishing capital punishment they usually have in mind those unfortunate who kill in anger or out of fear or because of jealousy. And those who argue for the retention of the death penalty usually want it for the professional killer, the cold-blooded gunman and the bandit. They are not treading upon common ground.

Dig Deep
DIG deep if you would have the richest treasures. One may wash gold dust from the shallow stream, but the coveted nuggets of gold is found buried deep in the bowels of the earth. Those who would find diamonds must move mountains of earth and "pull many a gem of purest ray serene the dark unfathomed caves of ocean bear."

The profoundest beauty in a great painting, or the work of sculpture, and the rarest jewel of wisdom on the printed pages will not be found on the surface. Art does not surrender its true self to those who will not "dig deep."

One may wear gold and jewels without descending to "unfathomed caves" or burrowing underground, but for the richest treasures in literature, painting, music and sculpture one must do his own prospecting. Other may create it, but the individual must discover it for himself. Numbered among the natural resources of the earth are coal, gas, and the various minerals. Art is an artificial resource but of them all it alone is inexhaustible.

What applies in the field of art and treasure-hunting is equally applicable to more workaday affairs. Deep digging pays in business, industry, labor, housekeeping, farming or study. In modern phraseology this universal truth is expressed to youth to "get out and dig" if it would accomplish something in life.

This Time May Come
The time may come.
When someone will not be extolling the "good old days."
When the comic sheets will not pretend that husbands are henpecked.
When a reporter, a detective and a parson on the stage or in the movies resemble a reporter, a detective and a parson in real life.
When popular magazines will think up some new way to adorn their covers without glorifying the American girl.
When a man will work as hard as he leads his wife and his friends to think he works.
When an employee admits he is being paid all he's worth.
When a man gives up his automobile and explains that he can't afford one.
When suckers will not be stung by fake investments salesmen.
When bors will not take the perfunctory cue "how are you?" as an invitation to give an "organ recital."

Yes, the time may come. But we don't expect to be alive to enjoy that millennial dawn!

Road to Success
IN the attainment of solid, well-founded success there has never been found a substitute for honest labor with the hands or mind. The ages have recognized this as an immutable truism, yet every age, including the present, has had its skeptics its unbelievers, its seekers after fame and fortune without paying the price in work.

Some sage has said that to attain success use half as much effort as you would exert in attempting to seek success without work, without descending to "unfathomed caves" that takes less mental effort to climb to legitimate success than to climb to an illegitimate

by Sidney Warwick

READ THIS FIRST
Frank Severn has been kidnapped from his country home, Beggar's Court, apparently by persons trying to steal the fabulous and sinister Czarina Rubies. Severn's friend, Jim Wynter, enlists the help of Bill Grayson, a lawyer, and they search the grounds, discovering a secret stairway and a locked door in the GAL. 61

ruins of an ancient chapel. While they plan to force the door a wall collapses, burying it under tons of masonry. They suspect Martin, a servant of Severn's, of dynamiting the wall. They begin to doubt also the sincerity of Sant, Severn's attorney.

In a village nearby they meet an ex-convict, Ilisham, who goes on crutches. Also they encounter a mysterious Dr. Martell, whose presence Martin, the servant, tries for some reason to conceal.

Grayson's wife and Katharine Faring, to whom the rubies rightfully belong by inheritance from her Russian grandfather, return to London while the two men plan to search Beggar's Court again at night. Severn discovers Ilisham, his crutches laid aside, examining a motor boat in a boathouse. Almost at the same moment he is fired on from the darkness and drops to the ground to save his life.

NOW GO ON
CHAPTER XXXVI
But luck was with him. His groping hand touched the great exposed roots, still partly covered with the clinging earth out of which they had been torn. Jim Wynter felt several degrees happier as he slipped behind this cover.

And still no sign on his enemy's part.

Jim had spent the last few moments thinking hard. The man who had dogged him was not far away, might even be nearer than he thought. The question was whether he was to wait for that figure in the shadow to take the initiative, or to take it himself.

Perhaps it was that uncertainty as to his now invisible quarry's movements that made this furtive gunman apparently so wary about showing himself in the open after those two shots had gone wide.

CONTEMPT
It might be that this specialist in treacherous murder, skulking in the dark, shooting from the dark, Jim told himself contemptuously, was out to run no risks himself. Was he apprehensive lest if he ventured out of cover the man he had stalked might seize advantage of the confusing obscurity in this grim game of blind man's bluff to spring out on him from some unsuspected hiding place, take him by surprise? Thought it less risky to bide his time on the chance of getting in another shot?

Well, what if he could strike at a weak spot in this seemingly none too confident enemy's nerves?

A thought had suddenly flashed across Jim Wynter's mind with the remembrance of something in his pocket—something he had bought at Pensholt before he and Bill had motored back to Beggar's Court. Something he had planned to use tonight, though not in this way or to meet any such emergency of danger. A wonderful bit of luck that purchase! Thanks to it Jim saw a sudden chance of turning the tables—a sporting chance worth gambling on! And in those waiting moments of suspended hostilities he began to make his preparations swiftly and silently.

Was that a movement in the shadows? Jim's ears caught a faint rustle as of stealthy footsteps, as if his enemy was tired of watchful inaction. And simultaneously came a sound from the boathouse too. Above the faint lapping of the waters of the estuary against the bank he heard a sound as of some one stepping into a boat moored by the landing steps there.

The man calling himself John Ilisham, who had never been seen in the village without his crutches, must have been able to move very expeditiously without their help. Jim Wynter caught the sudden muffled splash of oars dipping into the water. And then out of the darkness came a swift rush of feet toward the bank of the stream—and then Jim knew that he had two enemies, not one, to reckon with.

"He's got away by water—slipped through our hands, damn him," he heard a low voice mutter in furious chagrin not very far away.

So those unknown enemies of his—he could faintly make out the two shadowy figures as they raced to the bank to peer out into the dark of the estuary—imagined that the man now pulling out into midstream, to be carried along swiftly by the tide, was their intended quarry, Jim Wynter.

Though they were less than a dozen yards away, their features were still indistinguishable in the dim obscurity, though one of them impressed Jim with a sense of vague familiarity. He was pretty certain it was Martin—a fact that would not be in the least surprising.

Martin, who knew the secret behind that underground door was suspected.

It was the other silhouetted figure who flung up an arm as if to fire after the escaping man they believed to be Wynter; then evidently thought better of the impulse.

"What does that interfering fool, Wynter, suspect, to bring him nosing about here? We've got to stop him. Frome, before he can find out anything to make him dangerous. He may even be dangerous now."

It was Martin's voice, and there was an ugly ring about the words that were just loud enough to reach the man about whom they were spoken.

And almost simultaneously there came faintly to Jim's ears the sound of a distant car. Was it Bill Grayson's car?

But whether Bill's car or not, a swift impulse had decided Jim Wynter that he was going to take an active hand in the game now, try out that sporting chance.

It might be a reckless impulse, since these men were under the impression that he had escaped by boat and he had only to lie low to be in no further danger. But his blood was up and with that sense of mounting passionate wrath against these men who had planned treacherous cold-blooded murder, Jim Wynter was in no mood to play for safety.

Martin he had already recognized; he was determined to see too who that second would-be killer was. Whatever the risk, he was ready to take it—it was worth taking! And the sheer unexpectedness, the very audacity of his plan should carry it through.

Besides, if Bill were in that near-by motor car—

"Now's the moment, Jimmy—now!"

In the darkness a little smile crept about his lips. But his eyes were not smiling. Dangerous eyes, they looked just then.

There was just the faintest scratch of a match, and then as if a vivid searchlight had lit up the wide grounds a blinding white glare swallowed up the darkness in one swift moment; picking out clearly for Jim's eyes the suddenly-startled faces of those two would-be secret slayers.

"Got you both nicely covered!" clicked out Jim sharply, simultaneously with that white explosion of light, to the two men whose identity was no longer a mystery: Martin, as he had guessed, and the man he had seen with Martell in that upper room of the Cross Keys Inn. "And it won't be healthy for the first man who moves!"

Nothing more than a super-dose of flash-powder that press photographers use! But to the two incredibly startled men, who had never dreamed that their intended victim was still within a few yards of them, had come the swift unerring sense of having been caught in a trap.

In that vivid white-lit moment Jim Wynter, with that cry on his lips, could see the sudden jump the swarthy-faced man from the inn gave; the long-barreled automatic had spun from his hand. As for Martin—but there was no longer a Martin visible on the bank.

Before that blinding flash Martin, near the edge of the bank, had stepped back involuntarily with a scared start, lost his footing on the sloping, slippery brink, to disappear backward with a wild half-uttered cry that the turbid waters drowned.

Swiftly the fleeting glare had sunk and died out, and the darkness swam up again like a flood. And scarcely less swiftly Jim had leapt out from cover, to make a dash to where now one figure alone stood on the bank.

SURPRISE
The unnerved man heard rather than saw Jim's rush in the swiftly falling, intensified darkness. In a panic he pulled himself out of that first dazed consternation to stoop or that fallen weapon, but his fingers had not time to close on it.

"You treacherous, murderous swine!" broke from Jim fiercely, his eyes blazing.

His arm shot out and behind the blow was all the released passionate fury of a man with good cause to see red; an uppercut that made the other's teeth click, almost lifting him off his feet. With a gasping sob the man staggered and collapsed.

"And that's that!" Jim Wynter remarked to himself, with a sudden grim satisfaction in his face.

The modernistic treatment of sex in "Hell's Angels" has created wide discussion among women fans, and the feminine element is always well represented at all performances.

HEAR STEPS—SCREAMED
NORRISTOWN, Pa.—Shriill screams of a woman in Balala, suburb, brought a squad of police to a home. With drawn revolvers they cautiously approached the house. The front door was thrown open and there the officers found a little white dog, having the time of his life tearing up a magazine which he would drag up the stairs and then let roll to the bottom.

On the third floor, the maid, Emma Batiste, the maid, and source of the screams. "I heard steps," she explained. "Steps and rustling and it kept coming closer and closer. So I screamed."

83 TONGUES SPOKEN IN SOVIET UNION
BERLIN.—Europe, second tiniest of the five continents, has 34 different countries wherein no less than 120 different languages are spoken. Out of these 83 alone are spoken in the Soviet Union.

Nearly 81 million people speak German as their native language. Russian is talked by 71 million and the English speaking number 47 million. It is interesting that there are more Italian-speaking people in Europe than French, namely 71 million and 70 million, respectively.

Mother Martha Shops-

Imagine my surprise and delight when Dan, Dorothy's boy friend, arrived Friday night and said he had come down to get me to help him choose Dorothy some jewelry for Christmas. They are not definitely engaged but there is an understanding that they will be and it was with secretly thrilled heart that I started out with him Saturday morning. Nor did I fail to notice, as I was supposed to do, George's whispered conversation with the dear boy before we set out. So father is going to indulge me in some jewelry again this Christmas.

What a wealth of gift suggestions I found in the jewelry stores! At Sensesbrenner's there are such beautiful pen pencil sets of mottled colors. One especially attracted my eye. It was pale blue and pink with a frail black line running through and costs $8.00. They carry Wahl pens. At Brunner's there was a beautiful line of men's cameo rings, the popular thing this year. And mesh bags. Such a beautiful display of mesh bags were shown at Sensesbrenner's for as low as $2.00. They have them up to $8.00.

John hasn't bought his sister's gifts yet I think he'd like to get Jeanette some stationery. He's been having a special price until Dec. 18 on the Old Wood Block, the Tiffany Three Monogram and the My Name-100 sheets and envelopes for $1.00. Father courage Dan's intermittent spells of smoking, there is a very clever green and black enamel cigarette case, here with a lighter over the case. The price is $12.50.

Brunner carries the Elgin, Hamilton and Walton watches, and many fraternity emblems and rings. Dorothy might be interested in the ebony and silver man's brush which has a silver comb fitted into its back. $5.00. I should like to get Marion the amethyst pendant and earrings, I saw there. And perhaps I shall, later.

At Butch's I found a gift for George's Mother. It is a jade-handled set of reading glass and letter opener. The price was only $3.50. And there is the very sweetest sort of thing for a baby. It is called a Porringer Cup and is a round shallow silver bowl with a flat open-work handle upon which rests a curl-and-curl silver baby spoon. The set costs $5.00, $4.00 for the cup and $1.00 for the spoon. Butch too, has some beautiful watches and some Parker pen and pencil or desk sets which appealed to me. He has a splendid line of wrist watch bands in price from 50 cents to $15.00.

Brunner has a wonderful line of silverware and silver flatware. He specializes, too, in clocks. On a modernistic designed electric clock tells also the date — today. Monday 14. Sensesbrenner has a complete line of Kippy K's, Trav Valet, First Aid, and so on. He has, too, a lovely line of compacts from 50 cents to $7.50 in price and has a special display of pendant necklaces ranging from $2.50 to $18.00 in price. If you were in my shoes what would you prefer of all that gorgeous outlay?

Mother Martha.

Home Education

Rules for Reducing Jealousies

Professor Garry C. Myers, head of the division of parent education of Western Reserve University, Cleveland, give the following rules to reduce jealousy among children:

Train the child early in independence.

Don't give the child too much attention.

Avoid too much adoration of the baby in the presence of the older child; see to it that the older child gets adequate attention and approval.

Establish early individual ownership among the children and see that it is respected and practiced. Do not compel one child to share and give up to another; use persuasion.

When one child is requested or commanded to do something, do not let a volunteer do it for him.

Do not send a child with an unpleasant message to another child. Never discuss with one child the shortcomings of an absent child.

Make home duties for each child definite; avoid doubts and over lappings of such duties.

Do not compare children nor hold up one as a model for another. Strive to help all the children of the family to earn equal approval and try to distribute praise and disapproval as nearly equally as possible.

SERMON SENTENCES

Judge not thy friend until thou standest in his place.

There is a lot of satisfaction in reaching a goal you thought you never could make.

A man is educated when he knows how to make a tool of every faculty.

Some folks point out the right way without making you feel like taking the wrong one.

A soul without a horizon dies. Cowards die many times before their death; the valiant never taste of death but once.—Shakespeare.

The Son of God did not come to stay on the level of humanity but to lift it to His level.

Beauty of character originates within and modestly shows on the outside.

Blessed is the man who can see the upward way even when he gets a black eye.

Even a rare duty is better for being well done.

Be enthusiastic it is contagious. Only what we have wrought into our character during life can we take away with us.—Humboldt.

The most lovable quality any human can possess is tolerance. It is the biggest that enables us to let people be happy in their own way instead of our way.

and I got Dorothy a Gruen May-fair baguette when she graduated from high school, here. They are only $70.00 now, and other Gruens are as low as $29.75.

At Brunner's, Dan and I found a gift for Dorothy. It is a dainty white gold and sapphire combination of pendant, earrings and bracelet. The price was $10.50. We looked at a number of lovely things here. Speaking of lovely things, there was such a lovely cloisonne one on a dainty yellow gold. 14 inch chain which was, in reality, a slim flat compact. And, though I personally hope Dorothy doesn't encourage Dan's intermittent spells of smoking, there is a very clever green and black enamel cigarette case, here, with a lighter over the case. The price is $12.50.

Brunner carries the Elgin, Hamilton and Walton watches and many fraternity emblems and rings. CLUB NAMES NEW LEADERS

Miss Marian Hitler, Virginia Caskey, Elizabeth Dowden, and Polly Briggs were elected advisor, president, vice-president, and secretary-treasurer, respectively, of the Junior Girl Reserves at their first meeting, Friday evening. President Centh Carothers will represent the senior group.

The girls decided to hold their meetings on Friday of each week and to bring their lunches. They will wear their uniforms on Monday and Friday of each week. The uniforms consist of a dark skirt and white blouse with the Girl Reserve insignia instead of the blue tie which the senior group wears.

The following were nominated for president: Mary May, Charlotte Moore, Dorothy Lyle, and Virginia Caskey.

Those nominated for vice-president were Eleanor Miller, Bernice Liston, Elizabeth Dowden, Elsie Brehmer, Polly Briggs, and Charlotte Moore.

Secretary-treasurer nominees were Polly Briggs, Eloise Hatz, Helen Colville, Betty Morris, Martha McCrady, and Mary May.

PUPILS GIVE BOOK REPORTS

Helen Melson, Margaret Bower, Ruth Moffitt, and Pat Kirwin gave book reports at the regular meeting of the Epsilon Mu Sigma, Monday evening at Mary Helwag's home. The following books were reported on: 'Amarilly of Clothesline Alley' by Belle Maniates, 'Seventeen' by Booth Tarkington, 'Horseshoe Nails' by George Weston, and 'A Dangerous Game' by Richard Connell.

The club also discussed plans for Red Cross donations.

After the meeting the members were entertained with cards and dancing.

Mary Helwag and Dorothy Bartley, hostesses to the club, served shrimp salad, pimiento sandwiches, olives, and cocoa.

PLAN GIFTS FOR HOME - HOSPITAL

The faculty committee for the Christmas program at the Home and Hospital is in charge of Miss Emily Yates. The home economic classes, supervised by Miss Gertrude Pigman, have been making candy, half of which will be given to the inmates. Special Glee club, under the direction of Miss Johnda Tottle, the Girl Reserves, sponsored by Miss Valma Watson, and Hi-Y, supervised by E. I. Gephart, will furnish the program.

Session room teachers are accepting donations of money and non-perishable goods to be taken to the office and distributed to the Home and Hospital, next week. This procedure is an annual custom.

PLAN TO FINISH BULLETIN BOARD

The girls of the handicraft group made plans for the completion of the Girl Reserves bulletin board at their meeting, Thursday evening. Georgia Leist, and Dorothy L. Glick were appointed to finish preparations before the next meeting. The board was begun last year but was left unfinished for the club to complete this year. After the board has been completed the girls plan to make pillows.

Charlotte Caskey as hostess to the club served ham sandwiches, pickles, cakes, and cocoa.

Dorothy L. Glick will entertain the club on Thursday, January 9. Miss Gertrude Pigman is advisor to the club.

CLUB HAS SALE; PLANS PROGRAM

Home Economics club had a candy sale, December 10, in the high school corridors. Doris Schofield, chairman, Gertrude Parks, and Charlotte Steinhauer had charge of the sale.

Marie Richey, Martha Scholler, Ethel Hussey, and Betty Gephart were appointed to make plans for a chapel program to be staged soon.

The club will have a social meeting, December 14, with Sara and Charlotte Steinhauer joint hostesses.

MAKES CAGE SQUAD

Leo McClure '30' has made the varsity basketball team at Rio Grande college, Rio Grande, Ohio.

ASSISTANT INJURED

Albert Hoffman was burned Wednesday when several chemicals which he was mixing exploded and spread over his hand. Hoffman's injuries were treated by George Leist. He is physics laboratory assistant.

ENTERS CLASS

David Buchanan, son of county superintendent of schools, D. L. Buchanan, has enrolled in the senior class. He is a former scholastic senior of Carrollton, Ohio.

Ralph Hoffman has withdrawn and moved to Akron, Ohio. Audrey Nebel left school this week to go to Columbus, and Zelma Van Fossen has withdrawn and moved to Washington, D.C.

SQUAD GETS 16 LETTERS

Football letters to 16 squad members and one manager were awarded, Friday, during the assembly. These sixteen boys included 7 seniors, 3 juniors, 4 sophomores, and 2 freshmen.

Coach P. S. Herberholz in awarding the letters expressed his regret at seeing such valuable men as the seniors are, leaving the squad, and said 'nice things' about each as follows:

Robert Hundley, senior full back, unanimously elected honorary captain by the team this year. He was a real leader at all times, did wonderful work, and showed plenty of nerve.

Frank Dunlap, senior tackle, reported for practices under any difficulties and always played a sterling game.

Jack Chalfin, senior tackle, didn't seem to like football when he first came out but gave his best and did fine work.

Porter Stout, senior halfback, always full of pep and always took his share of the blame. This is the type any coach would be proud of.

Leroy Moore, senior guard, reported this year for first time, but it only took two games for him to show his ability.

Robert Griffith, senior half back, is not big and husky but is strong on the mental order. He always fulfilled his duties wherever he was placed on the team.

Lawrence Styers, senior tackle, although from 50 to 60 pounds less than his opponents, always did his best and did it well. He sets a good example of perseverance having been a sub for two years but still standing loyal.

Dean White, junior quarter back, did a capable job of directing the team. He comes from a family of historical athletes and so far has succeeded in upholding the family tradition.

William Hegele, junior center, showed a splendid game and has another year to develop into one of the best centers one ever had in the school.

Paul Rooney, junior guard, showed his wares and played his game with all he had.

Merle Davis, sophomore half back, always played a good, consistent game and more is expected of him next year.

Fred Smith, sophomore tackle, one of the scrapping type that works hard for the team and give all he has so that some one else may do something for the team's good.

Lee Cook, sophomore guard, always worked hard, did his best, and reported for practices.

Charles T. Davis, freshman half back, 'Circleville's Ebony Express', was always on hand and always did his very best.

Kenneth Hill, freshman, liked football so well he came out in the eighth grade which helped to develop him into a better player. Much is expected from him in the next 3 years.

The last letter was presented to Waldo Hilyard, senior, who proved himself a capable manager throughout the season.

LIST 27 ON HONOR ROLL

Twenty-seven boys and girls received either first or second honors for the second grading term of the year.

The juniors hold the highest number of scholastic honors, placing 12 boys and girls on the honor roll. This is almost 18 per cent of the total enrollment of the class, 67.

The class taking second place on the honor list is freshman. Eight per cent, or 9 members, of the class of 112 members have received honors this month.

Senior class ranks third with approximately 6 per cent of the class, 72 having honors. This includes four members of the class.

Only two sophomores of the 105 enrolled received honor rating this month. This is almost two per cent of the members of the class.

First honor students must receive 90 per cent or more in four or more subjects. Those students who receive second honors must attain 90 per cent in three subjects.

GIRLS' GROUP PLANS SALE

Two things have occupied the minds of the Girl Reserves this week:

Senior Girl Reserves will have a bake sale, Thursday, Dec. 24, at Smith's meat market. The girls are undecided as to where the sale will take place. There will be a formal installation of the Junior Girl Reserves at a social meeting of the senior girls next Thursday evening.

Those on the initiation committee are Elizabeth Hilyard, Mildred Rummel, Myrtle Good, Zelma Betts, Catherine Closson, and Geneva Kennedy.

The lunch committee consists of Theda Bowsher, Eleanor Young, and Margaret Long.

The lunch which was served Thursday noon by Gene Rader, Rosemary Jackson, and Katherine Foreman consisted of hamburger, peas, baked potatoes, and tea.

Sara Steinhauer, Martha Scholler, Eleanor Young, and Zelma Betts washed the dishes.

Vice-president Joan Fitzpatrick had charge of the meeting.

SEVEN ENTER GIRL SCOUTS

Marianne Bennett, Dorothy Fohl, Virginia Caskey, Doris Lind-say, Dorothy Lyle, Thelma Merz, and Eleanor Miller were taken in as members of the Girl Scouts at its regular meeting, Wednesday. The girls started on their 'tenderfoot' work immediately.

All of the senior members received their Scout pins, Wednesday. The local organized group is now recognized as a national troop.

The girls will have a buffet supper, Monday evening, at Theda Bowsher's home.

Mrs. P. S. Herberholz is advisor to the troop.

BOYS HEAD GIRLS IN FAILURE LIST

The boys of the high school, with exactly three times the number of failures as that of the girls, lead the failure list this grading period. Sixty-nine boys and 23 girls in one or more subjects. It is a total of 92 failures compared to the 83 failures of last month.

Four failures for the month were received by two freshmen. Five freshmen and one senior received failing grades in three subjects. The junior and sophomore classes each have three students failing in three subjects.

The freshmen have 25 percent of their class of 112 receiving failing grades in one or two subjects. This is the highest percentage of any class. The seniors rank second highest, having almost 21 per cent of their class of 72 failing.

Exactly 20 per cent of the 105 sophomores failed this term and almost 20 per cent of the junior class of 67 members.

SIX DELEGATES REPORT ON TRIP

Pres. Charles Plum, Vice-president Robert Griffith, Treasurer Medford Good, Lutz Ashbrook, Robert Elsea, Albert Hoffman and Ralph R. Hite, who acted as advisor, attended the Hi-Y Older Boys' Conference at Dayton last Friday, Saturday, and Sunday. They reported to the club on their observations of the trip at the Hi-Y meeting, Tuesday noon. The reports were interesting, amusing and well received by the club.

Pres. Plum announced that Dr. G. D. Phillips, a member of the advisory council, would talk at next Tuesday's meeting on 'Fraternity Life in College.'

FORMER TEACHER GETS PROMOTION

William Griffith, former Circleville High faculty member and athletic coach who has been a travelling salesman for the A. G. Spalding Co. the past three years has received a promotion and is now manager of the Columbus offices of the company. Mr. Griffith received this appointment during the past week.

Many of his C. H. S. friends will be glad to hear of his success and wish him many more promotions.

SCHOOL TO BE DISMISSED
Circleville schools will be dismissed from December 18, 1931 to January 4, 1932, for 2 weeks Christmas vacation.

TWO MAKE CASE

Donald Wolfe and Henry Bartholomew have made a 32 space case for the books of the freshman girls in Miss Gertrude Pigman's session room. They also repaired locks on the file case in her department.

POSTPONE MEETINGS

Athletic Hobby group meeting has been postponed until next week.

The cabinet meeting of the Girl Reserves was postponed from Wednesday until after the first of the year.

TEACHER FINDS BABES

Discovered by a well known sophomore English teacher. There are two infants in the sophomore class. They, the infants, delight in playing with and chewing pencils and sleeping through the most delightful discussions. Well "Tump" and "Bill" will you never grow up?

High School Red and Black Staff is Named

"The staff of the high school edition of the Red and Black is arranged in accordance with the interest and abilities demonstrated since September by candidates. Each member is assigned to the squad, wherein his respective special proficiency lies. Members of each squad, the editorial, news, copy, and typing, will from term to term be rated, his or her position, first, second, etc., under his squad captain devoting his or her rank therein for the period covered.

"The pupil doing the best work each week will be designated as editor for that week's issue. This whole plan is desired by the whole group competing for permanent assignment to the editorship." J. W. Fetherlin, advisor.

Truants and Their Excuses

One of the most persistent faults of some C. H. S. students is the attempt to play truant from school under the cover of a feeble or even fictitious excuse. It is estimated that, if all the excuses submitted to the principal bore the true reason for the absences, probably 15 per cent would be illegitimate. It is very probable that the real reason for the employment of untrue alibis is to evade the school penalty placed on the unexcused.

One's habitual absence effects not only him but also his classmates as a whole as it disrupts their progress.

Classmates' knowledge of a person's continued truancy might easily influence their attitude toward absences, since they might give vent to rationalizing. It is the fact that one might be truant and get by on a weak excuse that furthers this practice. But punctual absence, let it be said, will broadcast an unfavorable impression and the ultimate results will prove disastrous.

WHO IS IT?

This senior boy is the 'jedge's' son. Always out for a good time and lots of fun.

A variety of girl friends has he and I don't know exactly the lucky she.

He is handsome, tall, and dark. With various teachers he's scored a mark. Because of his excellent printing ability.

He prints advertisements with ease and facility.

Helpful Home Hints

John Teal says: "Did you know that an arm broken becomes stronger at the place broken than it was previous to the break or fracture. This holds true to any other part of the body which has been broken or fractured."

Principal Topics

Why? A thirsty person must quench his own thirst. We may have information presented to us but we must take this knowledge and use it for ourselves.

Why? We receive our report cards, look at our grades and place the blame on the teacher if they do not satisfy us. Why was this grade received? Did I endeavor to do my best? Was I consistent in my efforts? Was I regular in attendance? Did I make up work missed during an absence? Did I ask questions about work I did not understand? These are questions which the inquisitive student will ask and answer for himself. WHY?
